BOARD PROVES ITS POWER TO CHECK MARKET

But Wonders if Speculators Are Strong Enough to Defy Rate of 6 Per Cent

FEAR HARM TO INDUSTRY

Uneasiness Remains While Shaking Down Progress Continues in Effect

Washington—While the authorities here have only an academic interest in what the stock market does, the sudden decline of security values which follows the increase by the federal reserve board of the rediscount rate has borne out predictions to the effect that when the board decided on drastic measures, the collapse of excessive speculation would ensue.

The only question now is whether the speculative elements are strong enough on the rebound to defy even a 6 per cent rediscount rate, particularly since there has been a steady continuation of speculative activity with call money rates ranging above 10 per cent.

The school of thought which has advanced the theory that a rise of the rediscount rate from 5 to 6 per cent was absolutely essential must now defend that argument, it is contended, even though a further rise in the rediscount rate would be the natural sequel. There have been statements made by the advocates of increasing the rediscount rates to the effect that only by going up the scale could speculation be curbed.

There have been, on the other hand, from the beginning, certain elements here which have insisted that the battle with the speculators might be disastrously business generally and that an increase in the rediscount rate to 6 per cent might adversely affect foreign trade. This group has argued also that a sudden shaking down of stock market values would tend to unsettle business. What has happened in the last twenty-four hours is a sort of compromise which is described in the words, "mutually satisfactory plan."

PROTECT BUSINESS

To prevent a squeezing of business which would normally follow the rise in rediscount rates, the federal reserve system will make available unlimited amounts of credit through its bill policy. The drop from 5 1/2 to 5 1/4 per cent in bankers' acceptance rates already is taken to mean that a further decline may be expected in the bill rate. There are many who believe that this will mean easier money conditions for business generally.

3 AIRMEN TO TRY FOR NEW ENDURANCE MARK

Chicago—(P)—Three aviators were prepared to take off "some time today" in an attempt to remain aloft nearly three weeks. They have set for their goal the breaking of the endurance flight record of 242 hours, recently made in St. Louis by the St. Louis Robin.

The Chicago fliers, C. Earl Steele, Russell Mossman and Wilson Herren, have christened their cabin monoplane, Chicago We Will.

MISSING SWISS TRIO FOUND IN PORTUGAL

Airmen Work on Plane to Prepare for Flight to U. S.—May Hop Tomorrow

Lisbon, Portugal—(P)—Three Swiss aviators, missing for three days, were located here today working busily on their airplane, in which they shortly, possibly tomorrow, expect to take off on a flight to New York.

The aviators arrived here Saturday afternoon, landed their plane at Alverna Aldrome, and began secret preparations for a trans-oceanic flight, from Lisbon to New York.

The airmen flew here Saturday from Cazaux, France, making the 621 miles in six hours. The previous night they had spent at Es-cabon on the southwestern coast of Brittany, and previously had flown from Zurich to LeBourget.

They left LeBourget Thursday and when they were not reported some fear for their safety was aroused.

Their names are: Oscar Kaeser, pilot; Kurt Luescher, Backer and mechanic; and Alfred Tschopp, navigator and mechanic.

Tschopp said he would not make the flight, explaining he was "no use at sea." He said his weight would be replaced with gasoline, and he would await here news of his companions' arrival.

Their plane is named the Young Switzerland. Kaeser is just 22 years old, Luescher 21.

SEVERAL LEADERS BID UP ON STOCK MARKET

New York—(P)—Several leading issues were bid up in violent fashion on the New York Stock exchange today. W. S. Steel common selling up $11.50 to $22.50, a record level for this issue, traditionally known as the "bell wether" of the list.

Adams Express had one of its characteristically wide moves, soaring $32. Allied Chemical rose $13.50. Commercial Solvents $12 and American Telephone $7.

Trading, however, was comparatively quiet, many traders still remaining somewhat stunned by the startling developments of last week, when the New York Federal Reserve bank raised its rediscount rate to 6 per cent, and precipitated a wide open break in security prices. Today's advances were limited to a selected assortment of issues, such as important groups as the coppers, and motors falling to participate.

Fund Bill Causes Crisis At U. W.—Regents Convene

Madison—(P)—Asserting that a "serious crisis" has arisen regarding the University of Wisconsin appropriation from the legislature, President Glenn Frank today called a special meeting of the board of regents because he "cannot assume personal responsibility for the next move."

In a statement issued before the meeting, which was to be held today, President Frank said:

ZEP RESUMES WORLD CRUISE LATE TUESDAY

Eckener Sets Hour but Admits Unfavorable Weather May Delay Start

Friedrichshafen, Germany—(P)—Dr. Hugo Eckener, commander of the Graf Zeppelin, this afternoon ordered the dirigible "cleared for sailing" on the Tokio stage of her flight around the world, at 3 o'clock a. m. Wednesday (8 o'clock p. m., Tuesday, Appleton time). He admitted the departure of the big air liner might be delayed by unfavorable weather.

The dirigible has been perfectly groomed for its long flight. An engineer from the Maybach company said the Graf's newly installed motors were good for 1,000 hours more flying.

Two courses have been plotted by Dr. Eckener for the trip, which probably will be the hardest the giant Graf has been called upon to make. One is a northern route across Siberia and the other a southern route. The distance for each is about 6,600 miles.

FIVE-DAY SCHEDULE

This distance Dr. Eckener expects to cover in about 120 hours, or five flying days, or at an average speed of 55 miles an hour. The average speed on the just completed eastward crossing of the Atlantic was more than 75 miles per hour.

Both northern and southern routes, it was understood, converged at Chita, Siberia, where the Zeppelin probably will turn southeast to pass over Peking, ancient Chinese imperial capital, before heading out across the Hwang-Hai, or Yellow sea, for Tokio.

Observers pointed out multiple hazards in the flight project, probably exceeding in danger anything the Atlantic has offered the Zeppelin. Practically no weather information will be obtainable once the Zeppelin moves east of the Moscow metropolitan district.

Siberia and northern China is uncharted from the airman's point of view, according to the Zeppelin in turn to page 10 col. 4

MRS. BERGER BOOMED FOR CONGRESS SEAT

Milwaukee—(P)—While Socialists yesterday boomed Mrs. Meta Berger, widow of the party's former leader for the seat he once occupied in the house of representatives, the receiver, from President Herbert Hoover, a letter lamenting the death of her husband, Victor L. Berger. The letter:

"My Dear Mrs. Berger: I have just heard of the death of your husband and wish to extend to you my heartfelt sympathy. I trust that you will be given the strength to bear this, the greatest loss that can come to you."

Herbert Hoover.

Mr. Berger died Wednesday as the result of a basal fracture of the skull and other injuries suffered when he was knocked down by a street car on July 16.

ANOTHER THEATRE IN CHICAGO IS HELD UP

Chicago—(P)—Robbers employing the same tactics that have been used in a long series of Monday morning theatre holdups, took $5,000 from the safe of the State-Congress theatre early today.

They kidnaped Charles D. Peet, manager, from in front of his home, forced him to return to the theatre and open the safe, and then fled leaving Peet and a night watchman bound and gagged on the office floor. The stolen money represented most of the weekend receipts from the theatre, located just outside the Loop.

During the past several weeks half a dozen theatres have been similarly robbed.

BULLETIN Banker Fires At Bandit At Black Creek

An unidentified youth attempted to hold up the Bank of Black Creek shortly before 3 o'clock this afternoon but escaped without loot after the cashier, George Peters, fired at him. The would-be bandit slumped slightly after the gun was fired but it is not known whether he was hit. The gun was fired inside the bank and search has failed to reveal a bullet mark in the building.

The man was described as about 23 years of age, about 5 feet 6 inches tall and wore a khaki suit. He drove north out of Black Creek in a Pontiac car, it was reported.

The robbery was attempted just a few minutes before it was time to close the bank at 3 o'clock.

13 Killed As Texas Train Hits Truck

All Were Members of Two Families—Only Two Survivors Remain

Dallas, Tex.—(P)—Thirteen persons all members of two families living near Mesquite, 20 miles east of Dallas, who had spent the day visiting here, were killed last night when their truck was struck by the Sunshine special, crack Texas and Pacific train, at a grade crossing landing to the Forney-Terrell highway.

The truck was demolished. Eye witnesses said it stalled on the track and was struck broadside. Bodies of the truck's occupants were found for several hundred yards along the track, most of them mangled so that identification was difficult at the Forney morgue. The dead:

Mrs. Iva Badgett, 45; Era and Vera Badgett, twins, 22; Texas Badgett, 16; Emma Badgett, 19; Birdie Badgett, 9; Jessie Badgett, 7; Mary Joe Badgett, 3; E. F. McHenry, 53; Mrs. Annie McHenry, 43; Beulah McHenry, 16; Emma McHenry, 10; Billie McHenry, 4.

Only two members of the families were known to have survived. One was Sherwood Badgett, about 65, father and husband of eight of the crash victims. He was said to have witnessed the accident which occurred about 150 yards from the Badgett farm home.

Mary Lee Henry, 7, was in a Dallas hospital. She received fractures of both legs but was expected to live.

So mangled were the bodies that it was several hours before the death list was completed. A lengthy search was made for E. L. McHenry, under the impression he was not a member of the party, before his body was identified by a friend.

The elder Badgett apparently was too dazed by the tragedy that wiped out his family to give a description of the collision.

3 CONFESSED BANDITS FACE MINNESOTA TRIAL

Minneapolis—(P)—Trail of three men, two of whom admitted robbing banks in Iowa and Minnesota, was taken place in this state, it was indicated today by Frank T. White, Sherburne attorney, who plans to seek life terms for the trio.

Roy Salzman, alias Collins, and Pat Melavin, admitted robbing the First National bank of Elk River, Minn., last Friday, as well as holding up the Exchange bank of Gilmore, Iowa, in May. They implicated Gust Becker, Summer, Iowa, in the robberies.

Salzman and Melavin were brought to the county jail here following their capture shortly after the Elk River robbery, while Becker was brought to the jail last night from a Princeton, Minn., hospital where his right arm was amputated as a result of wounds received in a gun fight with police officials who captured the trio.

An 18-year-old girl, Alice Hull, Minneapolis, who was with them at the time of their capture, is charged with receiving stolen money. She had $3,000 of the $7,200 in currency taken from the Elk River bank, on her person.

Five Eastern States Feel Slight Earthquake Shocks

(BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS) A series of earth tremors, varying considerably in intensity and length of duration, rocked portions of five eastern states and one Canadian province today.

Quakes were reported at intervals from as far east as Springfield, Mass., west to Ashtabula, Ohio, south to various points in Pennsylvania and north to Toronto.

In most cases the effects of the shocks were confined to the awakening of sleepers and the violent rattling of windows and dishes, but in western New York, where the tremor appeared to have reached its maximum intensity, considerable damage was done.

Seismographic readings at Canisius college, Buffalo, fixed the time of the principal shock at 24 minutes, 55 seconds after 6 o'clock a. m. (Appleton time), the main tremor lasting 12 seconds and being followed by minor shocks at intervals throughout the next six minutes.

Reports of shocks from other points, however, fixed the time as early as 2 o'clock.

In Canadagua, where the tremors lasted nearly three minutes, large apartment houses were said to have swayed noticeably and police and fire departments were besieged with telephone calls from terrified householders.

In Elmira a woman reported that her bed broke down from the force of the quake.

At Alfred dishes and pictures were thrown to the floor during the shock which lasted about 15 seconds.

Binghamton reported the earliest experience of the quakes, fixing them between 1 and 3 o'clock a. m. (midnight and 2 o'clock, Appleton time), sleeping residents were awakened by the violent tilting of their beds, but no damage was reported.

Most serious damage was reported from Attica, where one of the walls of the Methodist Episcopal church was cracked and falling chimneys damaged the roof of the building. A huge chimney on an industrial plant at Warsaw, in Wyoming, collapsed.

Rev. John P. Delaney, S. J., head of the seismographic department at Canisius college, fixed the center of the quake at a point at least 200 miles south of Buffalo. The shocks traveled in a north and south direction, but their course apparently was erratic.

The seismograph failed to record the intensity of the shocks, the amplitude of the tremors being so great that the recording needle ran off the record sheet.

The quake, according to meteorological observers, was the first to be felt in the Lake Erie area since the St. Lawrence valley tremor in 1925.

BANKER STILL AT OFFICE OF LONDON FIRM

Hint Snowden Delays Action to Give American Chance to Intervene

CHANCELLOR GETS O. K. Premier MacDonald Pledges Full Support to Delegate's Action on Debt

The Hague—(P)—The political committee of the reparations conference today began discussion of a possible date for the beginning of evacuation of the Rhine.

London—(P)—J. P. Morgan was authoritatively stated to be in the offices of his London banking house this morning. The Associated Press learned this after investigating reports he was at or enroute to the Hague to mediate in the deadlock between the British and other allied delegations at the reparations conference.

The Hague, Netherlands—(P)—A crisis in the reparations conference was averted today by adjournment of the financial committee meeting until Wednesday and rumors were rife that the delay was intended to give J. P. Morgan, American banker, an opportunity to exercise mediating influence.

Louis Loucheur, French delegate, had been listed to speak at today's meeting of the financial committee which was to have taken up the proposal of Philip Snowden, chancellor of the exchequer of Great Britain, looking toward revision of the Young plan.

Chancellor Snowden, after several minor speeches had been made on the question of payments in kind, suggested that the meeting be adjourned until Wednesday. This was rather a surprise in view of the desire he had expressed Saturday to leave the Hague as soon as possible.

Reparations circles were alive with rumors that Chancellor Snowden's proposal was intended to give Mr. Morgan, who was one of the American representatives at the Paris experts conference which framed the Young plan, time to exercise mediating influence.

It was even reported that the American banker already was at the Hague or had been here in consultation with the delegates secretly.

Thus far this afternoon no delegate could be found who would confirm the reports, while Edwin C. Wilson, first secretary of the American embassy in Paris, and American observer at the present conference, stated that he was unaware of Mr. Morgan's whereabouts or intentions.

GETS PREMIER'S SUPPORT Chancellor Snowden waged his fight with France, Italy and Belgium today for a greater share of German reparations with the complete endorsement of Ramsay MacDonald, head of the British government.

This endorsement was contained in a cablegram received here yesterday by the diminutive chancellor, its contents reported from London as follows:

"In view of the statements so widely read on the continent that Mr. Snowden was bluffing, I want to make it perfectly clear that the claims he is making that Great Britain has now reached the limit of bearing unfair burdens had all of our support."

"I stated that that was so, irrespective of parties."

London dispatches also said David Lloyd George, leader of the British Liberal party, had telephoned London from his home in Wales, saying: "I fully approve of the stand taken by Mr. Snowden and am firmly convinced he will stick to it."

Importance of the two endorsements to the future of the conference of the governments seeking to make the Young plan effective could not be minimized.

Since the chancellor's first speech stating that Great Britain would not be able to accept any alteration of the SpE percentages for division of reparations the conference has looked to the amiable Mr. MacDonald for a sign his government would not hold to its stand beyond a certain point.

NATIONALISTS HUNT ABDUCTED MISSIONARY

Tsinan, Shantung, China—(P)—Henry Wesche, American missionary, who has been captured by Chinese bandits, is being sought by several military detachments of the Nationalist government.

The American authorities have received assurances every effort is being made to rescue the American. Mr. Wesche was captured at Tung Changtu Shantung, where the missionary colony numbers 14, including Wesche's wife and daughter.

Wealthy Colony Near Panic After Big Jewel Robbery

THINK PLANE USED TO GET LAY OF LAND

Police Officers and Private Detectives Guard Wealthy Bay State Colony

Beverly, Mass. —(P)—Something akin to a panic has been caused among the wealthy members of the North Shore colony by Saturday's $250,000 jewelry robbery at the exclusive West Beach estate of E. T. Stotesbury, Morgan partner. Local offices have been reinforced by private detectives from New York to guard the vast wealth in the seclusion of the homes.

The belief that the porch climber who pried his way through the big old stone French doors of the big waterside mansion, might have obtained his bearings by airplane observation was given credence when Mrs. H. C. Frick of the Crossings, reported that an orange-colored plane had flown low over the North Shore colony several days last week. The palatial Frick estate is not far from the Hutchinson place and is one of the most magnificent homes on the coast.

From other sources police learned that the mysterious aviator carried a passenger who, as the plane swooped low over the wealthy homes, "shot" the estates with a camera gun.

PHOTOGRAPH ESTATE

But against this theory there was admittedly strong evidence that the robbery might be an inside job. A loaded rifle which Mr. Hutchinson invariably kept in his dressing closet was afterward discovered in a spare room with its cartridges removed and missing. Other circumstances, together with the careful discrimination evinced by the thief in discarding certain valuable, less costly jewelry while he helped himself to Mrs. Hutchinson's $150,000 pearl necklace and several other valuable pieces led investigators to consider the possibility that he had a confederate within the house.

Detectives representing insurance firms, went yesterday in a searching cross examination of practically every member of the domestic staff from nursemaid to gardener.

GET FINGERPRINTS

Police, claimed to have obtained several excellent fingerprints but it was not known whether these would prove to be those of the prowler who awoke Mrs. Hutchinson just before dawn Saturday. Mrs. Hut hinson, the former Edith L. Stotesbury, was too frightened to cry out until the intruder had fled from her plundered dressing table into the heavy fog which blanketed the coast.

Mrs. Stotesbury had worn her necklace less than 24 hours before at a dinner party given aboard the yacht Aztec by A. C. Burrage, son of the copper magnate-owner of the craft. At the same party, she had also worn her expensive diamond bracelet which was among the lost.

WIND, RAIN AND HAIL RUIN ONTARIO CROPS

Toronto —(P)—Ruined crops and damaged buildings today marked the path of a storm which swept through this part of Ontario over the weekend.

Wind, rain and hail destroyed orchard crops and flattened grain while lightning struck several buildings causing loss by fire. The worst of the storm was felt Saturday when hail in the vicinity of Agincourt destroyed 50 per cent of the oats crop, did extensive damage to corn fields and virtually destroyed apples and garden crops.

Numerous traffic accidents were reported on the roads about here, caused when motorists blinded by the storm drove off the highway, many cars overturning in the ditch. Residents of Laskey, a village near here, escaped possible injury when the storm broke just before they assembled in a largest tent for a community celebration. Lightning struck the tent, tearing it to tatters.

LIGHTS TOY BLIMPS WITH CIGARET, AND DISFIGURES VENDOR

Chicago —(P)—It wasn't so funny for Tony Notorella. . . . "Buy a balloon!" Tony cried, as he moved slowly down St. Louis-ave., carrying the gaily-colored rubber envelopes, round and buoyant with the illuminating gas with which he had inflated them. An automobile whirled alongside the 11-year-old balloon vendor. One of its occupants leaned out and shouted:

"Watch the fireworks, folks! Let's have some fun!" And he flicked his lighted cigarette squarely among the balloons. There was an explosion. The gaily-colored balloons were bits of burned rubber. Tony Notorella lay screaming on the ground. Doctors said he would be scarred for life.

The one who had tossed the cigarette stepped on the accelerator and sped away, laughing.

WINDS AGAIN FAN DYING FIRES INTO BIG CONFLAGRATIONS

Fatigued Forest Guards Compelled to Put Full Efforts into New Battle

Spokane, Wash. —(P)—High winds today were changing several smoldering northwest fires into raging conflagrations to further harass fatigued armies of fighters who have been combating them for the past few weeks.

The most destructive fire in the region was in the Barnaby creek country on the Colville Indian reservation of eastern Washington. Previously reported under control, it sprang into life under the impetus of a high easterly wind and was raging uncontrolled on a 25-mile front through valuable stands of white pine, tamarack and fir.

The blaze on Sand creek near Sand Point, Idaho, which was threatening the watershed from which the town gets its water supply, was confined to a strip on the divide between Priest and Pend Oreille lakes but fighters were almost helpless because the fire had gone to the tops of the trees. Other fires in the district were expected to be under control shortly.

In the Kaniku National forest in northern Idaho winds fanned a dozen small fires-into activity. The recalcitrant Bald mountain blaze in the Selway National forest continued to defy all efforts of suppression and was still licking its way toward the Lolo trail.

About 2,000 men were battling fires in the Chelan and Wenatchee National forests of Washington but reports of their progress were meagre because of the heavy fall of smoke which obscured the territory. The Wolf creek fire in Okanogan-co. has burned over more than 2,000 acres.

Other blazes not yet under control included one on the west fork of the Yaak river in the Kootenai forest in Montana, two in the Flathead district, one on Sullivan creek and one on Spruce creek.

BOMB WRECKS HOME

Chicago —(P)—The home of Anton J. Inhahn, president of a stationery engineers' union local, was rocked by a black powder bomb early today. Inhahn, his wife and their two children were in the building but escaped unhurt. The damage to the two-family flat building was estimated at $2,500.

TARIFF GROUP FACES TOUGH JOB THIS WEEK

Must Decide What to Do With Sugar, Hide, Leather, Shoe Rates in Bill

Washington —(P)—Putting off some of the most difficult items to the last, the senate finance committee Republicans today faced the necessity of deciding this week what to do with the highly controversial sugar, hide, leather and shoe rates written into the house tariff bill.

That brief but troublesome list comprised the major items still confronting the committeemen in their task of rewriting the rate schedules of the house bill. They expect to complete those schedules by the end of the week and turn them over to the Democrats of the committee for their consideration while taking up themselves the remaining, and possibly even more arduous task, of rewriting the administrative provisions of the measure.

With the Smoot sliding scale plan abandoned because of opposition by the sugar industry, the Republican committeemen are now expected to agree on a flat rate for this commodity somewhat higher than the present impost but considerably lower than that voted by the house. A figure around 2 or 2.05 cents a pound on Cuban raw sugar is expected in many quarters, compared with 1.76 in the present law and 2.40 in the house bill.

SEE LONG STRUGGLE

Considering the highly controversial nature of this and other sections of the measure, it is becoming increasingly evident that the bill which will finally be passed will have consumed more time in the legislative machinery of congress than even the Fordney-McCumber law now in force. The formulation and passage of that act in 1922 consumed eight months and 13 days. Although the rate schedules will be ready and the senate will reassemble next Monday, the agreement to postpone consideration of the new measure until Sept. 4 to enable the committee majority to complete its work will carry its time-consuming period to within two weeks of the 1922 record, and the debate to follow will add weeks and possibly months to the total.

Some members of the senate, in fact, are already suggesting that the bill cannot be disposed of before the regular session of congress begins in December, a situation which they believe would tend to add greatly to the time required for disposal of the legislation. They see that situation developing despite assurances from the Democratic leadership that no attempt will be made to delay unduly action on the bill, and base their calculations on the organized opposition to many sections of the house measure among the Republican independents.

Although the finance committee Republicans have modified many of the industrial rate increases voted by the house, the Republican independent opposition is expected to draw strong Democratic support, with lengthy discussion of the administrative provisions and numerous rates in prospect.

CANADIAN ACE MISSING FOR LAST 2 WEEKS

"Duke" Schiller and Two Companions Sought in Hudson Bay Territory

Toronto, Ont. —(P)—Charles A. "Duke" Schiller, Canadian flying ace, was being sought today in the wilds along the northwest shore of Hudson bay where he has been missing since his takeoff two weeks ago on a prospecting flight with two companions.

Search by an airplane for several days has revealed no trace of the party and the Northern Aerial Minerals Exploration company, which employs Schiller as a pilot, has decided to dispatch a second plane today from Sioux lookout to join in the search. Schiller was accompanied by Jack Humble, mechanic and Tom Creighton, a prospect. "Duke" Schiller achieved wide prominence in August, 1927, when he announced plans for a non-stop flight from Windsor, Ont., to Windsor, England, with Phil Wood of Detroit, a brother of Gar Wood, the speedboat racer. The plane made three false starts, one from Windsor Ont., another from St. George, Que., and then from Old Orchard, Me. After finally landing at Harbor Grace, Newfoundland, the flight was definitely abandoned.

Later in 1927 Schiller flew in the National Air derby, a non-stop flight from New York to Spokane. He was accompanied by Edward Bohn of St. Louis.

HELPED BREMEN FLIERS

In 1928, Schiller flew to Greenland to the relief of the crew of the Bremen, which had just completed the first westward flight over the Atlantic. Later he accompanied captain James Fitz-Maurice, co-pilot of the Bremen, on a flight from Greenland to Quebec to obtain parts for repair of the Bremen.

In July, 1928, his pilots' license was suspended for six months by the department of national defense, which held him responsible for an airplane accident. Two months later his license was returned to him, however, in order to enable him to fly with food to prospectors on the northwest shore of Hudson bay, where he is now believed to be lost.

Mrs. Donald E. Schiller of Toronto, mother of the missing flier, was advised over the telephone that an intensive search was being carried on for her son. Schiller's wife, who is at 481 St. Marie, where the flier makes his home, telephoned to her mother-in-law seeking information. Both mother and wife are convinced that Schiller is not lost and are hourly expecting word that he is safe.

Big Market Body Begun For Fruits

United Growers of America to Be $50,000,000 Co-op Organization

Washington —(P)—The federal farm board today announced that it had not been consulted in the formation of a plan to organize a $50,000,000 cooperative fruit and vegetable marketing organization to be known as the United Growers of America, which was announced last night in New York.

"The plan for this organization," a statement by the board said, "has not been presented to the board, the organizers have asked for no endorsement by the board and the board has no information concerning it and is therefore not in a position to express any opinion whatever about it."

The board's statement was interpreted as meaning that the United Growers of America would have to submit to the same scrutiny by the board as any other agency of its kind if it desires loans from the farm relief revolving fund.

New York —(P)—A $50,000,000 cooperative marketing organization was preparing today to place the merchandising of fruits and vegetables on a "big business" basis.

The new organization, the nation wide scope of which is indicated by its corporate name United Growers of America, is the second such combination of agricultural cooperatives to be formed since the new federal farm board began to function. The first was the Farmers National Grain corporation.

Announcement of the creation of the organization said its initial work would be the coordination of the efforts of local and national cooperative groups. The National Growers of America will serve 60 subsidiary organizations in 21 states, the announcement said.

Headed by Julius H. Barnes, chairman of the board of the United States Chamber of Commerce, the United Growers will be directed by a group of nationally known men identified with agriculture and cooperative marketing activities.

The board of directors includes William M. Jardine, former secretary of agriculture; Robert W. Bingham of Louisville, Arthur R. Rule executive vice president of the Federated Fruit and Vegetable Growers, a national cooperative, Henry W. Jeffers,

REPORT FUR SHIP WRECKED IN NORTH

Russian Vessel Goes to Rescue of Schooner's Crew on Shore of Bering Sea

Seattle —(P)—Radio advice saying the fur schooner Elsie had been wrecked in the Bering sea, either having been crushed by ice floes or pushed ashore by their movement were received here last night. The message indicated the crew had escaped without injury and that a Russian ship named the Stavator was proceeding to the rescue. Twenty Seattle men made up the crew of the vessel, which had been icebound for the better part of a year.

What protection the crew of the Elsie had against the Arctic weather was not revealed in the meager reports. However, mariners thought it probable that enough supplies had been saved off the ship to prevent great hardships among the survivors.

The Elsie left Seattle under the command of Captain Olaf Swenson, of the Swenson Trading company, July 19, 1928 and a few weeks later was icebound. She was freed from the ice only two weeks ago and was reported to be proceeding toward Siberia.

Last October Captain Swenson left his ship and returned to Seattle by way of Moscow, leaving the vessel in the command of Captain E. Larsen and R. S. Pollister. Swenson left here about a month ago on the auxiliary schooner Nanuk to accompany the Elsie. Although radio messages were received here from the Nanuk, her position was not known.

president of Walker Go don company, milk producers, of New York, John Burgess of Minneapolis, banker for Northwestern Cooperative associations, and Gray Silver of Martinsburg, W. Va., former lieutenant governor and organizer of the farm bloc in congress. The announcement said the United Growers had been organized in compliance with the agricultural marketing act and the Capper-Volstead cooperative marketing act.

FARMERS ARE URGED TO PROTECT CROPS FROM FIRE HAZARDS

Industrial Commission, in Special Bulletins, Outlines Safety Measures

Farmers of Outagamie-co are urged, in a special bulletin issued this week by the Wisconsin Industrial commission, to take special precautions to protect hay and grain harvests from fire.

The commission's bulletin follows: "News items of spontaneous ignition of hay in barns are beginning to appear in the press of the state. Proper curing of hay, salting and good ventilation of hay lots are best known preventatives of such fires.

"Each year also considerable grain in stacks is destroyed by fire, sometimes also buildings near such stacks. A few simple, common-sense precautions would prevent such fires.

"The land on which grain is stacked should be cleared from grass, weeds and rubbish. A plowed fire guard of not less than six furrows around the set of stacks would protect the stacks against running fire.

"Do not put all your eggs in one basket." On the same principle do not sack all your grain in one place, but have two or three separate sets of stacks.

"Place the stacks some distance from the buildings so that burning stacks will not endanger the latter or vice versa. Even a spark from a near-by chimney may lodge in your stacks.

"Do not stack the grain near any railway track.

"Smoking on or around grain or straw stacks is always dangerous and should be prohibited.

"The threshing engine should have a good spark arrester and metal pan to catch coals and ashes, which might drop from the firebox. It is not unreasonable to require each threshing crew to carry with them at least two good fire extinguishers.

"In placing the threshing engine thought should be given to the prevailing winds, that sparks may not be carried to stacks or near-by buildings.

"A few barrels of water with pails at each barn near the stacks is recommended. Such first-aid protection is usually sufficient to put out incipient fires and prevent total destruction of the year's harvest.

"The engineer should be required to keep all oily waste in a covered metal receptacle.

"Why hazard the product on which you have spent months of toil and care?"

2 FINED FOR PARKING CARS WITHOUT LIGHTS

Two men who parked their cars on city streets without lights were fined $5 and costs by Judge Fred V. Heinemann in municipal court Monday morning when they pleaded guilty. They are James McGrath, 119 N. Appleton-st, and Charles Hermann, Appleton. McGrath was arrested Sunday morning and Hermann was arrested last week. Officer Earl Thomas made both arrests.

APPLETON SCHOOLS WILL OPEN WEEK LATER THIS YEAR

The signing of the Armistice was important, and so was the formation of the Declaration of the Independence, but they were mere incidents in the lives of the youngsters of Appleton as compared to the decision to open the public schools of Appleton one week later this year. The schools will open on Sept. 9 this year, according to B. J. Rohan, who stated that inasmuch as Labor Day is a holiday it seemed more advisable to open the schools on a Monday the following week.

The teachers meetings will be held on the preceding Saturday. A general meeting will be held in the high school, and sectional meetings in Lincoln school and junior and senior high schools.

FOND DU LAC GETS EAGLE CONVENTION

District Gathering Will Be Held There Sunday, Sept. 29

The district convention of Eagles will be held at Fond du Lac Sunday, Sept. 29, it was decided late this week by Wisconsin delegates attending the national convention of the Fraternal Order of Eagles at Minneapolis. The Fond du Lac gathering is expected to attract approximately 300 delegates. Aerials from Fond du Lac, Dodge, Winnebago, Outagamie, Calumet and Manitowoc-ocs will be represented.

As Fond du Lac is centrally located, other nearby areas not in the district also are expected to send delegates. Preliminary plans for the convention already are being outlined in Fond du Lac.

Armory E probably will be convention headquarters. It is planned to initiate a large class in the morning, while the afternoon will be devoted to a business session. A dance will wind up activities in the evening.

State and national officers will appear on the program. Plans for fall and winter activities will be discussed.

$80,360 IN BUILDING IN CITY LAST MONTH

Building operations in the city of Appleton aggregated $80,360.00 during July, according to the monthly report of John N. Weiland, building inspector. Three residences cost $9,050; eight residences and garages, $8,740; 16 additions and alterations, $8,740; 17 garages, $2,870; five mercantile, $24,000; and two miscellaneous buildings, $1,500.

The fees from 51 building permits and one certificate of occupancy netted the city $52. One meeting of the board of appeals was held during the month, 32 inspection trips made, and 31 complaints investigated.

PREPARE ARMORY FOR FALL SHOW OF FLOWER SOCIETY

Gardens Improved by Rains and Record Number of Entries Expected

A new scheme for decorating Armory G where the fall flower show of the Flower and Garden society will be held Aug. 24 and 25, is being carried out by the American legion under the direction of Arthur Hantschel. The huge ceiling will be covered by lattice work through which there will be a special lighting arrangement and there will be other novel features.

The American legion is taking an increasing interest in the dates for the show approach and it is believed that the number of entries, because of this interest, will set a new record for this part of the state. The entry list of flowers will be announced in a day or two and it is believed more than 500 ribbons will be awarded exhibitors.

The rain in the last few days have been of inestimable benefit to flower gardens and sponsors of the show have renewed hope of a splendid exhibition, eclipsing even the spring show.

A special department has been created for juniors at the fall show, open only to exhibitors under 15 years of age. Flowers entered in this section must be arranged by the exhibitors who will furnish their own vases and the vases should be marked on the bottom with the names of the owners. Vases will be furnished for other exhibits except in some special instances which will be noted later in the week.

Special attention is to be given at the show to basket and box exhibits and it is hoped that there will be a large number of entries for ribbons in that section.

FORESTER MUST FACE TRIAL IN MILWAUKEE

Frank Forster, proprietor of a soft drink parlor at 1229 E. John-st, here, was arraigned before John Harrington, United States court commissioner at Oshkosh, Saturday on a charge of violating the federal dry laws as he waived preliminary hearing and was bound over for trial at the next term of federal court at Milwaukee. He furnished $1,000 bonds.

Forster was arrested last week when a squad of federal officers raided his place and found 17 half-barrels of beer, four quarter-barrels, a point and a quarter of gin and a pint of whiskey. The same night Forster's place was raided, federal men visited the Log Cabin Inn in the town of Center and arrested Lee Bloomer, Appleton, who also has been bound over for trial at Milwaukee.

Drunk Is Fined

Frank McKune, Mackville, was fined $5 and costs by Judge Fred V. Heinemann in municipal court Monday morning when he pleaded guilty of drunkenness. He was arrested about 8 o'clock Saturday night on W. College-ave by Officer Walter Hendricks.

REGULATIONS ON OIL BURNERS ARE TAKEN FROM CODE

Council Will Wait Until State Has Made Recommendations

All regulations regarding oil burners were dropped from the city's new building code before it was passed by the common council Wednesday evening. This action was taken because the council decided it would be more advisable to wait until the industrial commission has made certain recommendations concerning the use of oil burners.

The council, upon advice of a representative of the industrial commission, added a clause making it necessary to secure a permit, at a cost of $1 for all electrical wiring.

One of the provisions of the new building code is that in the future the building permit fee will be graduated. Formerly $1 was the charge for a permit for any type of building now the fee will be $1 for 3,000 square feet of floor space, and 5 cents for every additional 100 square feet. This, the council feels, will eliminate the inequality of rates that existed previously.

The new ordinance is divided into three parts, one for the construction of buildings, a second for the installation of plumbing, and a third for the installation of electrical apparatus and wiring.

LAWRENCE FRESHMEN TO GATHER SEPT. 12-17

The development of this period in which freshmen receive an introduction to college life assures the new college student an effective transition, according to Lawrence college authorities. To aid in the week's program at Lawrence, a special committee of sophomores, juniors and seniors, has been selected.

Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Schwerbell are spending the week at Stevens Point visiting relatives.

Driver Charged With Manslaughter After Fatal Crash

SHAWANO MAN ARRESTED IN DEATH OF BOY

John Johnson Freed on $1,000 Bond Pending Hearing

Charged with fourth degree manslaughter, John Johnson, Shawano, was arraigned in municipal court before Judge Fred V. Heinemann Monday morning and taking of testimony in a preliminary hearing of the charge was started. The case was not finished at noon and Judge Heinemann adjourned it until Wednesday morning. Johnson furnished $1,000 bonds.

The Shawano man was arrested Saturday afternoon by Sergeant John Duvall and Officer Albert Delgen at the car he was driving was struck by a machine driven by Rudolph Dessort, 724 W. Third-st., and Eugene Daschelet, 13, was instantly killed. Stanley A. Staidl, district attorney, ordered Johnson's arrest after investigating the crash.

Johnson was driving north on S. Cherry-st and Dessort was driving south when Johnson suddenly turned to the left to enter a filling station. He turned directly in the path of the Dessort car which struck Johnston's machine and then turned on its side. The Daschelet boy, riding in the rear seat of Dessort's car, was thrown through a side window and the car tipped over on him, crushing him to death. Johnston claimed he didn't see Dessort's car.

Dessort's sister Helen and a brother Oswald were in the car when it tipped over but were not injured.

Indian Who Jumped from Train at Green Bay Believed Near Oneida

Green Bay—Federal and Brown-co authorities Monday were seeking William W. Ka, 21, a navy deserter, who jumped from the wash room of a train at Green Bay Sunday while in the custody of deputy United States marshal, H. C. Jensen.

The youth was given the freedom of the coach and when the train stopped at a crossing at Green Bay asked to go to the wash room. When he failed to return the marshal had the washroom opened. An open window showed Wuaka had jumped from the train. Authorities are seeking him in the region of Oneida where it is believed he will try to hide among other Indians.

PADLOCKS PUT ON GAMBLING RESORT

Troopers Arrest 31, Seize Cash and Equipment at Saratoga Springs

Glens Falls, N. Y.—(AP)—Padlocks shine on several rooms of the widely known Halfway House today and the sporting element at Saratoga Springs is wondering if they portend a general clamping of the lid in this section.

Troopers arrested 31 men, seized $3,000 in cash and much more than that in gambling equipment at the famous resort between here and Lake George Saturday night. Sixty women players were permitted to go their way.

Alexander Patnode, known to the gambling fraternity as "Blues," was charged with operating the beautifully appointed establishment. His arraignment was set for this afternoon. The 30 others were fined $10 each after the lounge of the roadhouse was turned into a courtroom and a justice of the peace was summoned by the raiding troopers.

Six roulette wheels, several craps tables and other layouts were seized along with the cash. A similar raid two years ago netted about the same haul but the paraphernalia disappeared when it was left overnight. This time the troopers supervised its immediate removal to the Warren-co jail at Lake George.

SEARCH FOR BODY OF BRAZILIAN ACE
Plane Plunges into Water of Pensacola Bay—Investigate Cause
Pensacola, Fla.—(AP)—While his comrades of the air dived over Pensacola bay and tugs skimmed the water's surface, continuing their search for the body of P. P. Cardiero Farias, Brazilian aviator, an official of the Brazilian embassy arriving from Washington today was expected to report officially the cause of the flier's fatal plunge.

The plane, while flying high along the shore line Saturday, waved suddenly and plunged into the bay. A rescue detail from the Pensacola Naval Air base, where the Brazilian was taken a special training course at the request of his government, recovered the plane from 35 feet of water but found no trace of the aviator.

Examination of the craft has been ordered to determine cause of the plunge. Naval fliers withheld any explanation of the fall until the plane examined. They expressed their belief, however, the Farias, unable to right the craft, jumped at the last moment.

The Brazilian came here July 4, and soon was to have completed the special course arranged between the Brazilian and American governments. He was a qualified aviator in the Brazilian navy, but sought advanced training in the American air fleet. The flier's young widow was prostrated. With her two small children she awaited news of every development in the search for the body.

GUARDSMEN RETURN WITH HONORS WON AT CAMP DOUGLAS

Win Combat Fing Honors and Cup for Having Best Kitchen

Bronzed and hardened after 15 days' training at Camp Williams, camp Douglas, members of Co. D, 127th Infantry returned to Appleton Saturday afternoon. The organization was met by the 120th field artillery band and escorted to the army with that old veteran of national guard service, Mike Steinhauer, leading the march.

There were no pennants announcing honors flying as the guardsmen marched down the avenue but tucked away in the trunk of First Sergeant Joseph Kerrigan there was a cup for having the best kitchen the most times, and when official note is made, the world will be informed that Co. D again won the combat firing honors and stands as the best machine gun company in the 64th brigade.

The best kitchen banner was won seven times by the Appleton guards and they copied second honors almost every time they failed to get first place. The boys also copied kitchen honors last year and are proud in their praise of their cooks, John K. Curry, Oconto, and Peter Whydowski, Appleton, and last but not least the lovely K. P.'s who had to labor hard while on detail.

SET NEW RECORD
Brigade combat firing honors also is a repetition of last year's accomplishment but the men bettered their record by far this year. Their maneuver into position brought forth high commendation from commanding officers who observed the proceedings and when they started pouring lead it took but a few seconds to set the new record. Combat firing against targets is the closest the men ever get to actual warfare and a high rating places them among the best machine gun outfits in the national guard units throughout the United States.

Eight members of the company returned home with General Charles A. King medals for perfect attendance among their belongings. Sergeant Joseph P. Kerrigan had a gold medal for five years perfect attendance, the medal being presented personally by Colonel William E. Hall, Oconto. With ten other winners of the honor Sgt. Kerrigan had the privilege of reviewing the entire 127th regiment on its last parade.

The men also received King medals for a year's perfect attendance were Sgt. Kerrigan, Sgt. Howard J. VanOyen, Col. Charles A. Peerenboom, Col. Clarence A. Christen, and Privates-first class Frank T. Heinemann, Paul Kobal and August C. Witzke.

LOSE IN SOFTBALL
Softball honors were one of the things the company was forced to leave to some other unit. After winning seven straight games, the boys bowed to Co. K of Milwaukee and went into a triple tie for the regiment title. In the playoff they again lost to the Milwaukee team which won regimental and camp championships.

The Appleton organization also had one man, Zeta Kozel, entered in the annual track meet which was won by the 187th regiment, and had three men on the 127th regiment softball team. They were Peter King, Robert Currie and Edwin Helms. The 127th won the hardball title beating the 128th regiment 13 to 11 in a 14 inning tussle.

SENATE MAY EYE POWER INTERESTS AND COMMISSION

Next Investigation May Be Directed Toward Relation of These Groups

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
Washington — It looks as if the next Senate investigation might be an inquiry as to whether any of the power interests have been trying to monkey with the Federal Power Commission.

This commission is composed of the Secretaries of War Interior and Agriculture. Its directing head is an executive secretary, F. E. Bonner, succeeding O. C. Merrill, just retired. It controls all power sites on navigable waters and on public lands and federal reservations and has supervision over licensing location, design, construction, maintenance and operation of power projects on these sites.

The commission is supposed to function in the interests of the people. In its annual reports, however, one finds such complaints as that owing to lack of money and personnel it has been unable to perform its duties "related primarily to the protection of the public interests." Attempts to enable the commission to carry out its protective functions as required by law were for awhile blocked in Congress, allegedly by the aid of members friendly to the power interests.

The Water Power Act provides for investigation, upon each application of engineering features, best interests of the region, financial angles and other matters, but the sites have been handed out with little opportunity for such work as that, owing to a small staff and low appropriations.

Lately, however, the accounting staff of the commission has been able to put on a burst of speed, trying to catch up with its protective work and this activity appears to be working the power interests, who seem to have sought to head it off or nullify its effectiveness. Sites are licensed for 50 years, at the end of which time the government can recapture the plant of licensee as a municipality. The Act provides a system of public utility accounting and the government, upon the actual cost, minus the depreciation reserve. The higher the government will have to pay—and vice versa.

The commission accountants, under Chief Accountant William V. Kong, have been using the Interstate Commerce Commission's standards which consider depreciation as a definite operating expense, whereas electrical utilities involved consider depreciation allowance a matter for the board of directors to consider after making provision for bond interest and dividends. Other accepted standards used by King, with the commission's authority, have been equally annoying.

Recently word went around through the "grapevine route" that an attempt was being made to move King somewhere else. Whether this report was true or not, a remarkable document has found its way into print, tending to insure the safety of King's job, to reveal the attitude of not the activities of some of the power interests and to make likely a Senate investigation.

Certain Washington correspondents have it from the best authority that this document, labeled "The Federal Water Power Act and Its Administration. A summary with suggestions Confidential," was written to be passed around among power magnates. There is no apparent doubt as to its genuineness and it contains a number of juicy highlights. Such as:

"Despite our efforts to curtail the work of this (accounting) department it appears to be expanding. Some of the activities have every critical aspects for the industry as a whole. We were not so fortunate in the appointment of the chief accountant, Mr. King." "It is especially unfortunate that the Federal Power

LIFE'S ODDITIES

By George Clark

"But that one added room wouldn't cost much, would it? We'd very seldom use it."

Commission system of accounts was adopted at this time. "Consideration in open hearings, will call attention to the disparity between the two methods of accounting and without doubt will ultimately be reflected in our having to render statements of earnings reduced below our present showing with consequent dangerous effect on our stock values now so favorably quoted."

The communication disapproves of the accounting department's checking up on charges billed to subsidiary companies holding construction licenses by engineering and management companies. This is an old device by which higherups in the utility game are enabled to grab huge slices of money which are paid by the consumer.

And then the surprising suggestion—"if... further direct enlargement of the accounting staff is prevented it is believed that these departments will not have men specifically trained for this work. At least they will be removed from the direct supervision of Mr. King."

Those urging the investigation also want to know who has been getting a lion's share of the commission's permits.

OLDEST INN CLOSES

London — The Chandos Arms Hotel, Edgeware, erected in England during the eleventh century, has been closed. It is said to be the oldest tavern in England. At the time of its closing, it was in fair condition. This tavern is not without competition as to being the oldest in England. The Bell Inn, at Finedon, is said to date back to the tenth century.

Talks To Parents

SAUCE FOR THE GANDER BY ALICE JUDSON PEALE

It was the second time that mother had found a pack of cigarettes in the cubby hole of Harry's desk. She confronted him with the evidence.

"I found these in your desk. You ought to be ashamed of yourself."

"I don't see why," he replied. "Dad smokes three or four packs a day. I heard him tell you so the other evening. And I've seen you do it too lots of times, when the Watsons come over to play bridge. If there's anything wicked about it why do you do it?"

"What your father and I do has nothing to do with you. You are a child. You ate only 10, and I want to give you smoking till you're 18 at least. It's bad for you and I won't permit it."

"Well I don't see the point. If it's bad for me, it's bad for you. I'm no baby any more, you know. I only smoke a little and you smoke a whole lot."

To this Harry's mother could not, at the moment, discover any very reasonable way of convincing her son of the wisdom of her attitude. She resorted to the last resort of parents, a flat prohibition knowing even as she spoke that it would be ineffective.

You can't expect your growing sons and daughters not to follow your example in the matter of indulgences. They have a way of demanding reasonable reasons. They will submit only to such rules as seem binding to everyone.

If you object seriously to their smoking, you will have to give it up yourself. And if keeping the child from smoking does not seem worth the sacrifice or demands of you it is perhaps not worth the fuss you make about it.

Remember that the children of today hold that sauce for the goose is most assuredly sauce for the gander.

Prague — (AP) — The Czechoslovak government is going to ask parliament to finance an automobile road piercing the Carpathians and giving free access to Poland. The latter country will bear part of the cost but most of the highway, which must traverse many narrow gorges will be in Czechoslovakian territory.

THE NEW EGYPT
King Fuad has gone back to Cairo from London with a new dispensation, of freedom to Egypt. It is an agreement reached with the British government which must be ratified by the parliaments of both countries. Under it military occupation of Egypt by British forces is to be terminated, with provision that England shall retain military control over the Suez canal zone.
Responsibility henceforward for the lives and protection of foreigners will devolve upon the Egyptian government. British instructors are to train the Egyptian army, and if foreign officials are employed they shall be British. In place of a British high commissioner being stationed in Egypt, the countries are to exchange ambassadors. A political, military and economic alliance is contracted, and Egypt is to apply for membership in the League of Nations. The status of Sudan remains unchanged.
This treaty is of great international interest, particularly in Europe and the Near East. The Egyptian problem is perplexing and intricate. Great Britain must be given practically all credit for what modernization and social improvement has taken place there. The new Egypt is less than two generations old, and the beginning of its rescue from slavery less than a century ago. Other nationals have helped to exploit Egypt, but England has done the real work of regeneration.
Following the war the protectorate of 1914 was modified to give Egypt self-government and eventually a maximum of independence consistent with British interests in and beyond Egyptian territory. England has tried the dictatorship, protectorate and peaceful cooperation, and none has proved satisfactory. Egyptian nationalism, a creation of only the nineteenth century, entered upon its second phase before the World war, and its final and active phase following the war. It became so formidable that in 1922 England terminated the protectorate with three reservations, which included among other things the retention of British forces in Egypt, British authority in the background of police and military supervision, security of British communications, protection of foreign interests and the defense of Egypt against foreign aggression or interference. This settlement did not satisfy the Egyptian national spirit, which was particularly augmented by Zaglul, a leader comparable in a degree to Mussolini and Mustapha Kemal. The Zaglulists have remained politically powerful, and are expected to oppose and may be able to defeat the treaty King Fuad has just concluded.
When the Labor government of England was in power before it attempted to settle the political relationship of the two countries but failed. It is probable that the present treaty approved by MacDonald represents the maximum concessions Great Britain will make in the extension of independence to Egypt. Furthermore, those who are familiar with the situation in Egypt, and with Oriental and European politics, will support the view that it is all Great Britain ought to concede. There are many who believe she has gone too far for the welfare of Egypt and the protection of foreign interests. One cannot see how Egypt's opportunity for a full development of self-expression and national and economic freedom is abridged by the new treaty. It runs only for 25 years and it ought to be willingly ratified by the Egyptian parliament.

2-CENT AIR MAIL
Two-cent air mail is coming, says W. Irving Glover, assistant postmaster general. He finds an increasing demand for the service everywhere.

He also finds greater air-mindedness in the West than in the East.
The pioneering done by the postoffice department in that section has stimulated the patronage. In turn, the patronage demands and justifies further extensions. The same thing is pretty sure to happen throughout the country. There is in it a business circle of success. Lower postage swells the traffic, and increased traffic makes lower postage pay. What has happened with the mail when carried by stage coaches and railroads must happen when it is carried by airplane.

PEACE IN TURTLE ISLANDS
The fate of the Turtle islands has been quite amicably settled by treaty between the United States and Great Britain. For the benefit of any one so ignorant as not to know all about the Turtle islands, it may be said that they are seven dots on the map just off North Borneo. The largest of them is only a mile long.
Back in 1885, a British-Spanish-German treaty assigned these islands to Spain. They were considered part of the Philippines. In 1897, however, the Paris treaty settling the Spanish-American war left the Turtle islands out of the newly-acquired American group. In 1902 Spain ceded them to the United States.
There is a lighthouse on Taganac, the largest of the Turtle group, which protects the entrance to Sandakan, capital of British Borneo. For that reason the British take an interest in the tiny islands. The treaty just arranged leaves the islands under United States sovereignty but gives the administration of them to Great Britain.
It is fine to have all this so pleasantly settled. Most people never even heard of the Turtle islands, but now that they have been called to public attention they will be added to everybody's lists of prospective vacation points.

THE MODERN APOTHECARY
Pity the plight of Dr. George Cohen, Berlin druggist. Arrived in New York, Dr. Cohen started out to look for a drug store, to see how it compared with such institutions in Germany. He could not find any. There were stores that bore signs representing them as drug stores, but were found, on closer inspection, to be general stores or refreshment places. One of them, which Dr. Cohen entered, was so full of women getting beauty treatments and buying soaps and powders and ice cream sodas and things, that he fled. Nowhere could he find a genuine "chemist" or "apothecary" shop.
Alas! The poor fellow would probably have hunted through all the cities of this great land without any more success. Our drug stores, as we quaintly call them, are all right for us. They are a grand and glorious institution, serving a many-sided purpose. But they fail to measure up to the standards of a man who presides over a genuine German drug store which was founded before Columbus sailed for America, and has been in his family, descending from father to son, for 24 generations.
To an apothecary of his traditions, drugs are drugs, not to be desecrated by association with ice cream, pop, peanuts, apple pie, combs, lunch kits, cameras, magazines, candy, cigars, flash lamps, postage stamps, electric fixtures, flags and canned heat stoves. We are a queer people, with queer institutions, not to be understood.

NO MORE "ALL ABOARD!"
Here is a development about which something really ought to be done. The Central Vermont railroad has announced that hereafter its passenger train conductors will not cry, "All aboard!" or wave lanterns to signal to the engineer. All signals will be passed mechanically, from the cars; and the colorful shouts and lantern-wavings of railroad tradition will be no more.
Railroads being what they are, other lines no doubt will imitate this practice, until in all the United States there is not one that clings to the old custom. Probably it's being done in the interest of efficiency and all that sort of thing, but it's hard to take. One of the chief thrills of childhood is boarding a train, snuggling into a seat, listening for the long-drawn, enthralling chant of the conductor — lengthened out with a sharp upward inflection at the very last — watch the red lantern swing high in the air, and settling down for the first jentle jerk of the moving train.
There was only one automobile in the Roosevelt inauguration parade in 1904.
A butterfly in flight beats its wings nine times a second.

Seen And Heard In New York
BY RICHARD MASSOCK
New York—Scarcely a flutter of interest attended the recent efforts to lighten the summer covering of Manhattan's menfolk.
The first emancipated male to walk the streets in pajamas was an editor from out-of-town, attracted by the view of Broadway. And slight wonder, considering the view that office workers have every day from upper-story windows overlooking hotel roofs nearby.
There they can see girl tenants from vaudeville and movie-presentation units bending in rhythm bodies encased in nothing heavier than regulation rehearsal suits and kicking bare legs unencumbered from the hips.
RULES OF DRESS
The editor, having failed to stop traffic, was unmolested, but two local disciples were picked up by police. The charge was disorderly conduct, each having caused a curious crowd to collect in his wake.
Judicial opinion was divided. One youth was given a suspended sentence and advised never to wear pajamas in public again. The magistrate in the other case, however, decided that if a man wanted to wear pajamas in the street his Honor saw no reason why he could not do so, providing he violated no law.
This ruling supports, only partly a precedent established some years ago by the managing editor of a newspaper at Springfield, Ill., where this reporter passed his cubism.
The story, as it came down in office legend, concerned a tram reporter who spent so much of his wages in bar-rooms that little was left for food and nothing at all for clothing. And what garments he did have did not improve with age.
One day the managing editor called him to his desk.
"Jim," he said, "we don't mind our men wearing black shirts if they want to wear black shirts, but we object to their wearing white shirts that have turned black. And we don't care if they wear sandals, if they like sandals, but we can't have them wearing shoes that have become sandals. Go out and buy yourself some new clothes."
FUNKED
The Edison examination for prospective geniuses had a farther-reaching effect than its sponsors intended. Reading about it, the head of a great corporation with headquarters on Fifth avenue decided to test some of his own young men.
He called them into his austere sanctum, where they stood in trembling wonder of what he was about to say. Turning to one, he asked, "Where is our southern branch located?"
There was a nervous moment and then the unhappy subordinate confessed:
"I don't know, sir."
The executive tried the next in line.
"Do you?"
"No, sir," admitted the second victim.
"Does anybody know?" asked the boss. No response. "Why, doesn't anybody know?" There was only painful silence.
"That will be all," he said, sadly terminating the interview. "Perhaps the reason you don't know is that we have no southern branch."

Today's Anniversary
U. S. AND SPAIN END WAR
On Aug. 12, 1898, hostilities between the United States and Spain ceased when plenipotentiaries of the two nations signed a peace protocol in Paris. The treaty was signed about two weeks after the Spanish government, realizing the hopelessness of a struggle which had become unequal, made overtures of peace through the French ambassador, M. Cambon, who had acted as the friendly representative of the Spanish interests during the war.
Under the terms of the treaty, Spain relinquished all claims of sovereignty over and title to Cuba, and ceded the Philippine Islands, Guam and Porto Rico and several other islands in the West Indies to the United States.
The United States agreed to pay Spain $20,000,000 within three months after the exchange of the ratification of the treaty.
Immediately after the signing of the treaty, President McKinley issued a proclamation suspending hostilities and on Aug. 13, the muster-out of 100,000 volunteers, or as near that number as was found to be practicable, was ordered.

MODERN KNOWLEDGE OF TUBERCULOSIS
Further progress in eradicating tuberculosis to a large degree on routine roentgen (X-ray) examinations of all young adults, especially those who have a family history of tuberculosis or who have been exposed to this disease. No patient can be considered as properly examined by a physician today unless roentgenograms (X-ray pictures) of the lungs are taken. So says Dr. Gerold B. Webb, one of the foremost authorities.
Dr. Webb tells us that the early signs of tuberculosis discovered by X-ray examination are not usually accompanied by marked symptoms of disease. By the time sales can be heard in a lung, or cough or pleurisy has occurred, the tuberculosis is, as a rule, well advanced.
This is going ahead! Why, even I can remember—and I'm of twentieth century vintage—when we felt we were pretty snappy diagnosticians if we detected a few rales in one apex after the patient had drawn in a breath, let out the breath and then kindly coughed a bit before drawing in another breath.
In spite of the increasing knowledge and the greater diagnostic skill of physicians there are still a great many victims of tuberculosis who prefer, it seems, to dodge the truth or who grasp every excuse and every opportunity to dilly dally and procrastinate, rather than face the issue squarely and have the question decided before failing health compels capitulation.
It has been fairly well recognized by the medical profession that lung tuberculosis is advanced beyond the incipient or first stage by the time tubercle bacilli are found in the sputum, as a general rule.
How, then, can the important question be settled in any case promptly enough to give the patient the advantage of early care and proper treatment? It is surely a dangerous policy to wait for definite symptoms or marked impairment of health to clinch the diagnosis. It comes down to a question of confidence in your physician's opinion and respect for his advice. After all, he can only arrive at an opinion that you have tuberculosis. If you do not consult him with the intention of abiding by his opinion, why consult him at all?
Suppose the doctor's opinion does turn out to have been wrong. Suppose you enter a tuberculosis sanatorium and after a sojourn there you haven't tuberculosis at all. Well, at any rate, no harm has been done. The rest, hygiene and education you have received in the sanatorium can do no harm no matter what ails you or no matter whether you are sick or not. If you really had an incipient or beginning active tuberculosis in the lung, a few months in the sanatorium may bring the disease to rest. I believe this very thing happens in not a few instances where patients get well not long after some courageous, honest doctor has diagnosed incipient lung tuberculosis. It is due to popular misunderstanding that the suspicion is breathed or the open charge is sometimes made in such cases that the doctor was evidently wrong. The evidence rather shows the doctor was right; the critics are wrong in their assumption that tuberculosis does not naturally tend toward recovery under fair conditions.

ANYBODY. I don't believe they have particular influence on neuritis.
Fresh Milk Is Best
Do you consider evaporated milk as good for family use as fresh dairy milk? If not, why not? (S. D. E.)
Answer—No, because I believe the fresh dairy milk contains more vitamins and more fat, and besides it tastes a lot better in my opinion.
Glasses For Poor Vision
What is your stand regarding people wearing glasses? Do you think it possible for vision to be restored to normal without the wearing of glasses? What can one do to improve one's eyesight without wearing glasses? (Miss R. P.)
Answer—(1) Wear 'em if your oculist advises it. (2) Possible but not to be anticipated in any case. (3) Avoid using the eyes under poor illumination, either insufficient light or glare. Give the eyes the only wholesome exercise that is possible—opportunity to look off at things at a distance during a fair share of the time. If necessary interrupt close work frequently in regard to things at a distance. Take a long walk every day and check the acuity of clearness of your vision for things at a distance and keep a record so that you may compare the state of vision from time to time. Do not be deceived by secret "eye exercises" marketed by shady mail order merchants. Looking at things is the best possible eye exercise.
Another Boric Acid Snuffer
Some months ago you or one of your correspondents told of the benefit derived from sniffing boric acid powder into the nose as a remedy for "head colds" and "catarrhs." I have been using it ever since, in the same way the old timers took snuff, and I find it is really of remarkable benefit. Before I began using it I had a "head cold" nearly every time the wind blew. Now I have little trouble. (C. G. M.)

Adventures In The Library
By Arnold Mulder
"THE INCOMMUNICABLE PAST"
A beautiful book, Willa Cather's "My Antonia," written about ten years ago ends on the phrase, "the incommunicable past." An exceptionally sensitive artist, one who has had more than ordinary success in transferring to paper the emotions and thoughts that many find almost impossible to express, was still so filled with her own impotence at the conclusion of a book that had in it more communications from the past than most books, that she felt impelled at the very end—to emphasize the thought that most of what she felt about the past as represented by the period of her story—that is, her own childhood—she could not communicate.
It seems likely that that is the experience of every writer who is genuinely an artist. Even in the case of just an average journalistic writer there is often, momentarily at least, a sense of impotence in the face of the impulse to express emotions that have been clearly realized but that are so elusive that they defy words. It seems likely that the more sensitive an artist is the more this impotence makes itself felt. A writer may be able to communicate more of the emotional and thought of his life of his own past than anyone else, but there will still be so many fleeting shadows, so many thought-gleams that were tremendously important at the moment they were felt, so important that they have been remembered across the years; that cannot be put into words that he is almost in despair.
I remember a mid-summer afternoon when I was a bare-footed boy of five or six. Hopeless to try to communicate it. It belongs to Willa Cather's "incommunicable past." Nothing happened. There was something about the feel of the breeze, about the little swirls of dust in a yard, something about the saps of the clouds that gave me a sense of expanding life that had more meaning for my emotional education than many books or lectures. That, moment, apparently meaningless, lay, stayed with me for several decades, more luminous than any events that were concrete and that can be described.
I suppose the average child's life has many such moments; they are connected with the unfolding of life and they are of tremendous importance. Miss Cather, a great artist, understands this and she has made use of it. She has actually succeeded in imprisoning some of such moments in words.
If I were to try to put down in a story or novel that sense of ecstasy that came to me as a little boy on that particular afternoon I am sure I should stand baffled. In the first place the ecstasy was wholly unaccountable. From my present point of view there was no reason for it at all. In the second place, there simply are no words in the dictionary to describe so elusive a feeling. If you have experienced such an emotion you can recall it to yourself; you can never, never adequately communicate it. Your past, the most vital part of your past, remains forever incommunicable, as Willa Cather clearly realized.
You can tell others about the first day at school, the fight you had with a neighbor boy, the time you broke your arm. Those are crude facts but they are relatively unimportant. They constitute one of your pasts, not the most important one. Your real past is incommunicable. You cannot make it live even for those who are closest to you—a d those who are most sympathetic. An artist like Willa Cather knows this. She understands that for the most part the real past is a closed book. Only hints can be given and real artists spend their lives trying to make those hints come alive.

A writer may be able to communicate more of the emotional and thought of his life of his own past than anyone else, but there will still be so many fleeting shadows, so many thought-gleams that were tremendously important at the moment they were felt, so important that they have been remembered across the years; that cannot be put into words that he is almost in despair.
I remember a mid-summer afternoon when I was a bare-footed boy of five or six. Hopeless to try to communicate it. It belongs to Willa Cather's "incommunicable past." Nothing happened. There was something about the feel of the breeze, about the little swirls of dust in a yard, something about the saps of the clouds that gave me a sense of expanding life that had more meaning for my emotional education than many books or lectures. That, moment, apparently meaningless, lay, stayed with me for several decades, more luminous than any events that were concrete and that can be described.
I suppose the average child's life has many such moments; they are connected with the unfolding of life and they are of tremendous importance. Miss Cather, a great artist, understands this and she has made use of it. She has actually succeeded in imprisoning some of such moments in words.
If I were to try to put down in a story or novel that sense of ecstasy that came to me as a little boy on that particular afternoon I am sure I should stand baffled. In the first place the ecstasy was wholly unaccountable. From my present point of view there was no reason for it at all. In the second place, there simply are no words in the dictionary to describe so elusive a feeling. If you have experienced such an emotion you can recall it to yourself; you can never, never adequately communicate it. Your past, the most vital part of your past, remains forever incommunicable, as Willa Cather clearly realized.
You can tell others about the first day at school, the fight you had with a neighbor boy, the time you broke your arm. Those are crude facts but they are relatively unimportant. They constitute one of your pasts, not the most important one. Your real past is incommunicable. You cannot make it live even for those who are closest to you—a d those who are most sympathetic. An artist like Willa Cather knows this. She understands that for the most part the real past is a closed book. Only hints can be given and real artists spend their lives trying to make those hints come alive.

FLASHES FROM HOLLYWOOD
BY ROBBIN COONS
Hollywood—A southern girl named Dixie Lee, who hails from sunny Tennessee and still claims no kinship to the Less of Virginia, suh! is something of a marvel in Hollywood.
Of course, Dixie Lee is not her real name, but all the same girls who have become Lees for theatrical purposes have been known to refer to the immortal Robert E. as grandmother's distant cousin, even though that maternal grandparent herself bore the name of Weinerschnitzel or Paprika.
Well Dixie Lee is here, with a mop of curly golden hair, enormous brown eyes and deep throaty singing voice which should "burn down" at least a few theatres as soon as its canned reproduction on talking nips becomes widespread.
Dixie "broke in" when her family moved to Chicago from New Orleans, and she entered a contest sponsored by Ruth Etting, the singer. Dixie won, and thereforward was a "professional," although with not very much to do. But eventually she won a place in the road company of "Good News," wherein she did the "Varsity Drag," and that settled it. Now she's out here, living with her mother in a little bungalow and hoping some day to be a star.

IN THE WILDS
The English settlement in the midst of the African jungle village swelters in the heat of a mid-day sun. About the commandant's residence, before the thatched-roofed bar room, loll dusky natives with vivid loin cloths and beads and gaudily painted bodies. A murky, odorous jungle stream stagnates nearby, and a "crocodile" (from the prop-room, of course) stares unseeingly from the reedy banks under tall palm trees—also props.
But for the camera booths, the lights, the "mikes" and the directors, actors, technicians which go to make up a talkie company, the huge set might actually be in the heart of Africa.
And over here a group of natives seem to be reverting to primitive joys. Huddled about a table, during the noontime halt, they are absorbed in what must surely be a desperate game of chance. But closer inspection reveals the black men are playing—dominoes!
Even the movie jungle is tame, after all.

FOOD FOR SUCKERS
Out-of-state tourists riding down the boulevard may well prepare for a shock. A car bearing Madison, Wis., plates, say, glides slowly through traffic. Suddenly its occupants are startled to hear a newswoman in the street clamoring "Extra! Extra! All about the big Wisconsin disaster!"
If that fails, the newswoman amplifies: "Extra! Hundreds killed in Madison!" And that (at least from the newswoman's viewpoint) seldom fails.

Scalloped Closing Of Bodice

BY ANNEBELLE WORTHINGTON Sleeveless! It just seems as though sleeves are a thing of by-gone days. Everywhere smart folk gather the sleeveless frock is the rule. The one sketched is a decided favorite with its trim straight sports lines, accented by scalloped closing of bodice and inverted plait at center-front of skirt. WOMAN GIVES FREE LEGAL AID IN DALLAS, TEX.

Dallas — (AP) — Miss Mildred Douglass, free legal aid welfare worker for Dallas, is regarded by the city's organized club women as a more valuable aid to domestic bliss than all Dallas ministers together.

The significance of her work probably was not realized by Miss Douglass herself until her $100-a-month job was abolished a short time ago. Now she's back at her post, however, reinstated. Mayor J. Waddy Tate has admitted publicly that he made a mistake.

A tide of indignation arose when Miss Douglass' job was deleted from the city payroll. Club women from organizations representing 25,000 voters confronted Mayor Tate with petitions demanding that she be retained. The voters held sway and Miss Douglass came back.

During her three years' service as a humanizing influence at the city hall, Miss Douglass has averted divorces in approximately 50 per cent of domestic cases brought to her attention. Hundreds of deserted wives have solved their stories to her.

ENJOY FRUITS WITH SUGAR

Improve the Flavor of These Healthful Foods

Everyone knows the importance of fruits in diet. Fruits give needed roughage, vitamins and beneficial mineral salts. It is important for children and adults to eat one raw and one cooked fruit each day.

The addition of sugar to either raw or cooked fruits brings out their finest flavors. Fruits should be made palatable, or otherwise we are not likely to eat enough of them. Prepared as we like them, they will become a regular and beneficial part of our diet.

"Fruit acids are softened by sugar," a famous food scientist recently said. "Fruit flavors are developed by sugar. Sugar promotes and facilitates the ingestion of fruits."

Remember this the next time you eat grapefruit, oranges or any of the fruits which appear on your table. You will enjoy them more with sugar. Varied foods benefit you more and you will eat them with this finest of nature's flavors.

All fruits can be made delicious with the addition of sugar. Fruit pies and puddings are most appetizing. Applesauce and jelly add delightfully to lunch or dinner. For weariness eat sugar. The Sugar Institute.

CADDY IS KIDNAPED ON ILLINOIS COURSE

Chicago — (AP) — A 16-year-old caddy, Frank Yosek, was kidnapped from the Ravidge Country club course at Homewood, Ill., yesterday in view of several players. Today police were still seeking him and his abductors, two women and two men. While being driven from Homewood to Chicago the boy leaped from the automobile and sought refuge in a house, the owner hiding him in the attic when he cried that he was being kidnapped. His abductors, however, followed and found him, and continued toward Chicago. One of the men was identified as Yosek's brother Peter, 25, of Detroit. Homewood police said. They found a letter at the caddy's home which led to the belief that the boy was needed in a plot concocted by a group of Detroit racketeers.

Flashes of Life

(BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS) New York — Nathalie Crane, 16, celebrated her birthday with a regular sub-bell party—ice cream and varied candies and favors, you know—and then went back to work on her next book, announced as a "psychological romance." She already has had five books published.

Providence, R. I. — A state trooper called at the home of Miccolia Maggio. "One of the children missing," he asked. Maggio said: "Wait, I'll count them," and lined up his brood. Noses totaling nine instead of ten, he admitted the possibility of a stray member and later identified the trooper's find as Joe, aged 7. Joe had been away well over 24 hours when picked up.

Atlantic City — There hasn't been any sensational rise in food prices here but Jack Drogan of Mays Landing, has the highest egg on record. It was laid by his pet hen while being taken in an airplane sightseeing tour. The Tynmites

By Hal Cochran

SINCE Coppy'd done a clever trick that all the kids thought very slick, he turned to happy Carpy and exclaimed, "Why don't you try to do some funny stunts, like me, to make the youngsters laugh in glee? It's your turn to amuse them. If you don't, they'll wonder why." Wee Carpy thought and then replied, "You're right. As yet I haven't tried a single stunt. I guess I'll turn some hand-springs round the ring. I've practiced that and I am great. Don't rush me now, but just you wait. The kids soon will be cheering. Watch the thrill that I will bring."

So, round the ring he gaily went Hand-clapping shortly filled the tent. The other Tynies watched him and agreed that he was good. He shortly finished with his trip and wound up with a "Yip, yip, yip." Then, as he met the Times, he said, "See! I knew I could."

Just then the wind began to blow and Scooty loudly shouted, "Oh! Part of the tent has ripped apart. I fear that it may fall." The Tynies looked and saw a hole torn through the canvas near one pole. "I'll fix that," cried lat Clowny. "Why, it won't be hard at all."

He climbed right up one piece of rope and then he said, "I surely hope that I can get back down again. I'd hate to stay up here." The canvas that was ripped a bit was soon fixed up and looking fit. "That won't come loose again," he said. "There's not a thing to fear."

Then, as he turned to climb back down, his face seemed covered with a frown. "The rope that I climbed up here on has disappeared," he cried. He called for help with all his might, but all the bunch were out of sight. Now, how can he get back to earth, when there's no rope to slide?

(A giraffe comes to Clowny's rescue in the next story.)

YERKES OBSERVATORY SEES PERSEID SHOWER

Williams Bay — (AP) — The perseid shower of meteors, an annual celestial display known as "The Tears of St. Lawrence," was observed early today by the Yerkes observatory here. E. B. Frost, editor of the Astrophysical Magazine, said six students, observing less than half of the sky, counted 140 meteors in the two hours following midnight.

The meteors were not especially large and varied not at all from those of previous displays. Dr. Frost said. The meteors are observable early in August, he said, and are brightest on the eleventh, after which they begin to disappear. Observation ceases on the fifteenth.

COLLARETTES DERIVED FROM CAPE COLLARS

BY DIANA MERWIN (Associated Press Fashion Editor) Paris — (AP) — A new cape-collar, called a collarette, shaped like the ace of spades with a hole cut in the middle, is the new come in "neck-wear." It opens up a whole new vista of collar possibilities. Wise ones think the collarette has come for a long stay in one form or another. Its present form is usually "pour le sport," with printed designs of polka dots or incrusted or printed graduated bands of contrasting or blending shades. As a result of the collarette, neckwear the collarette has future possibilities which may be developed later, designers think, in sheer linen, chiffon and crepe de chine versions, with trimming of handwork or fine lace. The J. T. Reeve circle, Ladies of the Grand Army of the Republic will hold a meeting at 7:30 Tuesday night at Odd Fellows hall. Balloting on candidates will take place.

MARINETTE—Banging the ball to all corners of the lot and giving Sam Ogile and Lefty Ritten almost perfect support, August Brandt's Fords from down Appleton way mauled the local entry in the Fox River Valley baseball league in a most merciless way and when the slaughter was over started for home on the extreme end of a 15 to 2 victory.

The win gave Appleton a grand slam for the current season, the Fords having won the first game here by a big margin and taking the second game at Appleton, 5 and 0.

Big Sam Ogile was probably the main reason the home club failed to count anything. Sam allowed but four hits, two of them triples but only one of which resulted in a marker. He was scored on in the very first inning when Kotal mused up a grounder and a sacrifice hit and a double by Werley pushed Denell across the plate.

The second run came in the seventh when Marinneau tripled and counted on a fielder's choice. But the efforts of the big fellow were so much that along about the seventh inning he showed signs of weakening under the pace and the hot sun and Manager Kotal called Lefty Ritten to the scene. The locals found the left hander a tough proposition after swinging at right handed tossing and Lefty retired three consecutive men via the strikeout route.

But things took on a merry aspect for the visitors in the third inning and they rattled up three runs. Kotal, first up, beat out a hit and went to second on an overthrow. Hillman lofted but Eggert was safe on a fielder's choice when Marinette tried to catch Kotal at third. Murphy then singled through short and Kotal scored. Sonny Tornow whiffed but with two men on Dats Crowe connected for his first triple and two runs counted.

A double by Bowers and a single by Egge counted singles resulted in three more markers on the fifth. Four more hits in the sixth inning saw only two runs cross the rubber when a double play cut off the rally.

Things were peaceful in the seventh but a lot of loud cannoning in the eighth resulted in five more runs for the Fords. Kotal again singled and stole second, scoring on a double by Hillman. Radtke then fled out to center and Leo Murphy singled over second base. That brought Tornow to the plate and he dropped the ball out in the Marinette tourist park, a long, long way from home plate. Dats Crowe followed with his second triple and Bowers got a walk. When "Booze" stole second base and Werley tried to get him. Dats legged it home and crossed the plate standing up. And that ended the scoring.

Tennis Fans Wonder As Wills Is Forced To Extra Sets To Beat Betty Nuthall

American Women Stars Regain Wightman Cup from Great Britain

BY ALAN J. GOULD
Associated Press Sports Editor
NEW YORK (AP)—Helen Wills, herself for six years the "girl wonder" of women's tennis, now at 24 faces the challenge of a more youthful rival for the first time since she became queen of the courts.

Two years ago Forest Hills, E. L. Wills, then 16, revealed a flash of youthful ability in the final of the American championship predicted a "bright future" for her English opponent. Next week the American girl will defend her national championship with Miss Nuthall, the outstanding contender as a result of the unexpectedly close match they waged in the deciding Wightman cup contest Saturday on the west side tennis club's classic turf.

The extent to which Miss Wills, after the straight years of invincibility was pushed to beat back 18-year-old Betty by scores of 8-6, 8-6, has altered the prospect of the championship singles tournament.

Miss Nuthall came so near to closing the gap that has for so long separated the game of the American with that of any rival that, given another opportunity, her impetuous rush may achieve the seemingly impossible—victory.

In the aftermath of the Wills-Nuthall match the debate concerns whether Helen has slipped a bit, her game perhaps a trifle stale after her campaign abroad this year, or whether Betty has so far improved as to life her game as close to the championship level as the scores indicated.

The probability is that both circumstances are true; in other words that Helen was caught somewhat off guard on a day when Betty was hitting the high spots with her rampantly daring attack.

Most striking was the frequent lack of finality to Miss Wills' stroke. Her game seemed softer, more cautious. Betty packed as much, if not more punch in her ground strokes. The outcome of the match left no little question as to whether the American any longer can be considered the hardest hitter of women's tennis.

Miss Nuthall once again demonstrated she is a great match player, capable of rising to the occasion. In forcing two sets to decide she accomplished what no other player has been able to do against Miss Wills in three years.

The series for the trophy was as close as this deciding match. The United States won by four to three but in seven matches had only a margin of one set while the English actually captured more games, 78 to 71.

Wisconsin Rapids—Wisconsin Rapids defeated Kimberly-Little Chute 2 to 1. The visitors thereby dropping their third straight game. The game was witnessed by a record crowd of 1,500. Eastling, leading three hits, one a double in the ninth by Lamers, after two were down. M. Lamers scored on T. Lamers' single. The Rapids scored twice in the second on singles by Schanlaub, Plahmer and L. Huber.

The Fords fattened their batting averages during the encounter, Kotal getting three blows in six times up. Murphy three for four, Tornow the even, and Dats Crowe four for five. Even Sam Ogile got a bingle, Ritten and Radtke being the only two to go hitless.

Ogile pitched real ball while he labored giving only one hit in each of four innings. But the big fellow hasn't worked more than five innings in recent games and with a mound he beating down on the diamond he started to tire in the seventh inning. Kotal saw the big fellow weakening and sent Lefty Ritten to the mound.

All the "wolves" in the league must reside at Marinette. They start "riding" a player in the first inning and they stay with him until the last day of the league never giving any credit for the efforts he might make. They started on Pederson in the second inning when he mused up a grounder that got away on the rough diamond and then turned to Denell for not making a couple impossible catches. No wonder Marinette players aren't winning ball games.

And while the Fords won a ball game they suffered terribly in the region of the pocket book. The cut Kotal got in the gate receipts wouldn't buy a respectable suit of clothes. If Marty Lamers hadn't been so secretive about changing his game with Wisconsin Rapids to that city Kotal might have had the northwestern here instead. He'd made a few nickles then.

Next Sunday Kotal and crowd will entertain for the home folks out at Brandt park. The opponent for the afternoon will be Fond du Lac. Kotal plans to make the game a booster affair so that he can make up a few of the deficits that occurred Sunday. The game probably will be the last home tussle for the Fords this year.

TWO MAJOR LEAGUE RECORDS ARE SET BY BABE AND ALEX

Ruth Crashes Out 500th Homer; "Old Pete" Wins 373rd Game

BY WILLIAM J. CHIPMAN
A. P. Sports Writer
THE reported cracking of the Athletic pitching staff seems to be gathering confirmation in the west but the crash will have to assume a much louder tone before it becomes audible to the Yankees across a chasm of ten and one-half games. The leaders and their pursuers both broke even over the weekend as the Cubs picked up one and one-half games on the Pirates by winning twice while the Buccaneers were dropping the odd game in three.

The weekend in the American league was notable chiefly for Mose Grove's third failure within a week to spear that elusive eighteenth victory and for Babe Ruth's four hundred ninety-ninth and five hundredth home runs of his major league career.

The Red Sox and the White Sox divided two games at Chicago over the weekend, the victors winning on Saturday by 10 to 7 and the home team by 6 to 3 Sunday. Al Thomas permitted only five hits in the Sabbath game, one homer by Jack Rothrock.

Washington cleaned up two games over the Browns, winning by 4 to 2 on Saturday and by 7 to 5 Sunday.

The National league weekend was marked by the fall of the late Christy Mathewson's life-time winning record of 372 games. Grover Cleveland Alexander held the Phils to two hits in the last four bounds of the eleven-inning second game on Saturday, and got credit for the 11 to 9 victory as the three hundred seventy-third of his 19-year career. The champion Cards tied the game for Alex with one in the ninth and won with two more in the eleventh.

The Cubs won the hard-fought games in Boston, by 4 to 1 on Saturday and by 3 to 1 Sunday. The Pirates while were dividing a Saturday bargain with the Robins at Ebbets field and absorbing a 5 to 3 tap on the chin Sunday.

Sheriff Blake and Charley Root turned in some fancy pitching for Joe McCarthy at Braves field in the two Cub victories.

With pitching such as they are receiving in Boston, the Cubs can do with less hitting but this fact is making no impression on Rogers Hornsby, among others. The rajah got a single, a double and his twenty-fifth homer Sunday to boost his average to .365.

Red Lucas trimmed the Giants by 7 to 2 on Saturday, but No-hit Carl Hubbell returned the compliment to the Red-legs on the Sabbath. The score was 6 to 1.

SCHABO'S MEATS PRIMED TO BEAT TUTTLE PRESS

Schabo's Meats from the Sixth ward will endeavor to trim down the husky Tuttle Press baseball nine who have been having things come their own way this season as far as American league games are concerned.

The meat slicers have been practicing every evening during the past week, and are determined to batter the Pressmen all over the park Monday evening. The Sixth ward aggregation has about as clean a record as has the Tuttle Press crew. They have won most of their games this year and have suffered few losses.

Athletics Hope To Beat 1927 Record Of Yankees

BY JOHN B. FOSTER
Copyright, 1929.
New York—The Yankees won 116 games in the American league race in 1927 and lost 44. That is the record for that circuit.

The assertion has been made that Cincinnati did as well in 1919, but with 95 and the schedule was 140 games instead of 154. To the unspeakable misery of all major league owners who found too late that they had pulled a honeer.

There is speculation now as to whether the Athletics this year can equal the record that the Yankees made in 1927. If the Athletics had been stronger in their double header days they would have been sure to equal it and better it, but like too many teams that are strung out for the pennant, they chop their double headers in two. That would be very disastrous for them if the race were very close. A real bullyboy championship team wins its double headers and makes life easy for itself.

The Athletics can only lose 15 games to make their record of this year as good as that of the Yankees in 1927, and that means not more than about two defeats a week from now until the end of the season.

They do not seem to be good enough to do it. They could win the pennant handily with the lead they now have because they are two weeks ahead of any other team in the race and two weeks means that they will be looting along comfortably by Sept. 15 if they maintain their present pace.

There is no apparent reason why they should not do so. They may get cold feet between now and the end of September but it doesn't seem probable. Serious physical injury might put them back but serious injury is something against which no team is safe however well it may think it has insured itself.

The 116 victories of the Yankees are a high water mark in the American league. Pittsburgh did as well as that in the National league in 1909 but the total record for victories in the National league, is held by Chicago with its 116 games won in 1906. That wasn't such a great achievement as it may seem to be because the Cubs caught an awful weak national league that year. The only team that had been looked upon as seriously threatening when the race started was the Giants, but the New York team disintegrated before it had become a threat.

That was the year in which Matty was ill, Bresnahan got hit in the head, Donlin and McGinnis broke bones and other members of the team fell over horses and forgot to pick them up. Chicago crowded a lot about its winnings but a team with any strength whatever could have won the National league race that year. When the Giants slumped, it was the league slumped with them.

Comparisons are made in National league record which are not sound. Those who try to make comparisons on victories and defeats must remember that the National league in its early years did not play 154 games in a season. The cities were too small to get out crowds for 154 games and players salaries were many per cent less than they are now that the percent is five or six per cent in size. Crazy pitchers and catchers played then for $1,500 as against $15,000 now and were glad to get a job.

Geary, hung up his sixth victory of the season Saturday, trimming Columbus, 9 to 6, his fifth since he began pitching in turn. Berghammer told Geary some things about the delivery of his curve, and heeding the advice, Dats has become a winning pitcher with a seventh place club.

Kansas City Blues Monday were seven and one-half games in front of the American association pack having taken three games in two days from Toledo. They won a double header Sunday, downing Casey Sten's men by 3 to 4 in the first game, with Max Thomas pitching steady ball. The second contest was a slugfest affair in which the Mud Hens outbatted Kansas City, but lost by 12 to 10.

REFFKE HURLS KAWS TO 2-1 WIN OVER NEENAH-MENASHA

Nixon Gives Way to Zenefski in Sixth and Pails Are Beaten

MENASHA—in one of the best games played at the local ball park this season Menasha lost to Kaukauna Sunday by a 2 to 1 score. It was a pitchers battle all the way with Refke winning over Nixon and Zenefski.

Nixon started on the mound for Menasha but was relieved by Zenefski in the sixth after he had allowed three hits, three walks and no runs during the first five innings of the game. Zenefski finished the game and allowed four hits, walked two, hit one batsman and gave two runs.

Kaukauna's first attempt to score came in the second inning when R. Smith was safe on Muench's error and Mulry walked putting men on first and second with one out. Frank then singled to right field where Beach caught the ball and shot it over to Handler, who tagged out R. Smith when he attempted to score on the hit. Phillips struck out for the third out.

Handler opened the third inning for the locals with a double to centerfield, went to third on an infield out and was run down between third and home when he attempted to score on a hard hit ball to the shortstop.

The first run of the game came in the sixth inning when Menasha scored their one and only run. Zenefski struck out. Weisgerber was safe at first when Frank dropped his fly to left field. Muench singled and went to second while Weisgerber was being put out at third. Shleski singled and Muench scored. Shleski was put out trying to stretch the hit into a double.

Kaukauna came right back in their half of the seventh and tied the score. Frank singled, stole second, went to third when Zenefski threw wild trying to catch him and scored on a sacrifice bunt by Phillips. They came right back in the eighth and scored the winning run.

Vils started the inning by singling off Shleski's glove. Versteegen walked. Wenzel doubled and Vils scored. R. Smith popped out and Mulry walked filling the bases. Frank ended the inning by being thrown out at first.

ZEPPELIN READY TO CONTINUE FLIGHT

parts of Siberia which will probably be crossed might go unreported. A single railway line, the Soviet trans-Siberian railway, travels the vast country.

FEAR ROUGH WEATHER

The single sizeable stretch across open water, from inland Peiping to Tokyo, probably will encounter weather of as tempestuous a character as may be found in the Pacific.

The Zeppelin crew and officers have no doubt of their ship's capability, however, and are only anxiously lest Dr. Eckener postpone departure a day longer than is necessary. They are anxious to be off on their great adventure.

All arrangements have been completed in Tokyo for reception of the Zeppelin. Dr. Eckener hopes it will be necessary for him to remain there only four or five days before proceeding across the Pacific to Los Angeles, from where the final lap to Lakehurst will be begun.

There have been a number of last minute applications for passengers space aboard the Graf for the continuation of the flight, but these are being refused. Among them was a Japanese woman, Miss Kaeko Wilmura, famous suffragist who headed the Japanese delegation to the international women's congress at Berlin a few months ago.

Vacancies in the passenger list, however, probably will be used to permit further loading of fuel.

In any case the start will be made in the early morning hours as the low temperature there permits a maximum load of gas.

Dr. Eckener made the announcement after getting one of the closest haircuts in his life. The barber who was grooming him tonorially persisted in going over the hero of Friedrichshafen's hair again and again despite Dr. Eckener's insistence that the haircut was already perfect.

"Everything is in perfect order for the entire flight around the world so far as necessary permits, visas and other governmental requirements are concerned," Dr. Eckener declared.

"The Soviet government has been most obliging in every respect. At the beginning of negotiations the Soviet authorities suggested a certain route over the vast Russian territory to us. We immediately asked them whether this was a prescribed or an optional route.

"The Soviets replied that there was a suggested route based on their meteorological experience. They did not in the least wish to prescribe my course."

Dr. Eckener declared recently in Friedrichshafen that the Zeppelin's departure would be delayed by procrastination of Russia in granting permits to fly over Russian territory were "arbitrary nonsense."

EDISON WINNER, "SMARTEST BOY," IS PAL TO FATHER

Wilbur Huston, 16, Likes to Go Fishing and Play Tennis

Seattle, Wash.—Wilbur Huston the 16-year-old son of the Episcopal bishop who won the Edison scholarship, may be a boy wonder to the rest of the world, but he's just a pal to his dad.

"His mother and I think he's just the kind of a boy anyone would like to know," says Bishop S. Arthur Huston of the Episcopal diocese of Olympia and father of "the smartest boy in the United States."

"Wilbur is studious, but not to the extent that he would not lay down his books to go fishing with his father," the bishop smiled. "Bill and I are just pals. We both love the great outdoors and we were always happy when out in the open, studying nature."

MARINE LIFE STUDY HOBBY

Like his famous grandfather, Wilbur Brotherton, plant hybridizing expert, Thomas A. Edison's new protégé is interested in plant life. He also likes research work in marine biology and the walls of his den in the Huston home here are covered with star fish, a large octopus, sea anemones and other sea life he has collected while tramping along the shores of Puget Sound at low tide. He likes to gather specimens of marine life and dry them.

His favorite sports are tennis and fencing.

The youth won honors at the Moran Lakeside school here for excellence in scholarship, fellowship, character and athletics. He entered the school at 12 and graduated four years later. He was studious, but did not shine as an outstanding figure according to his teachers.

"Wilbur didn't really expect to win and when I look at some of Mr. Edison's questions I don't see how he did it," says the Rev. Mr. Huston.

"I pondered for a long time over that question of what should be done if you were on a desert island and wanted to move a 100-ton boulder 1300 feet horizontally and 15 feet vertically. That question, in particular, looked pretty tough to me."

There are three children in the Huston family. Wilbur is the oldest. His sister, Ann, is eight and his brother, John Arthur, is five.

When the news of Wilbur's victory reached the Huston summer home on Puget Sound, the bishop came to Seattle to answer the flood of congratulatory mail and telegrams that poured in, while Mrs. Huston remained at the Sound home.

ORDAINED IN 1904

Bishop Huston is 52 years old and possesses a Phi Beta Kappa Key. He was ordained in 1904.

The bishop was born in Cincinnati. He graduated from Kenyon college in Gambier, O., and married Dorothy Josephine Brotherton of Detroit, Mich., in 1911.

He was curate of Trinity church, Columbus, O., from 1903 to 1907 and of St. Paul's Cathedral in Detroit from 1907 to 1915.

For the next five years he was rector of St. Mark's church in Chevy Chase, Wyo. Then he went to the Episcopal church in Baltimore, Md., for two years and served in St. Mark's church in San Antonio, Tex., from 1921 until 1925.

When the Rev. Mr. Huston was consecrated as a bishop of Olympia in Texas in 1925, Wilbur Huston served as crucifer at the ceremonies.

Bishop Huston is a Democrat, a 3rd degree Mason and is a member of the American Economic association.

While the passenger list of the Graf Zeppelin for its flight to Tokyo will not be officially announced until Tuesday, it is authoritatively stated 19 men and one woman will go as passengers. A number of changes have taken place in the passenger list.

Other new passengers are Dr. Seilert, an official of the German government, and a bureau chief at Hamburg; Helmut von Parkmann, photographer for both the Ullstein and the Scherl publications; Leo Gerville-Reache, representative of the Paris Martin, and a Swiss, Lieut. Christoph Tselin.

The other passengers are Lady Grace Drummond Hay, London; Commander Nishiro Fujishiro, Japanese naval officer; Commander Charles E. Rosenblatt and Lieutenant J. C. Richardson of the United States navy; Sir Hubert Wilkins, a well-known expedition leader; H. F. Leeds, New York; Carl von Weizsaecker and Robert Hartmann, representing the Hearst publications; Gustav Kauder, representing the Ullstein publications; Yoshimatsu Enli, representing the Osaka Mainichi; Kichimichi Kitanaka, representing the Osaka Asahi; Herr Gressenheimer, representing the Frankfurter Zeitung; and Hieronimo Megias, Madrid physician.

Prime Minister Began Career With Sixty Cents

BY WADE WERNER (Associated Press Staff Writer)

London—(P)—When James Ramsay MacDonald, prime minister of Great Britain and first lord of the treasury, leaves London for his "heart-to-heart" conference with President Hoover he will be thinking in terms of billions—the billions in armament costs now heaped upon the tired backs of taxpayers.

Much smaller sums were sufficient to wrinkle his brow when, as a lad of 19, he came to London practically penniless. He began the carving-out of his extraordinary career by addressing envelopes for a bicycle touring club.

Sixty cents was all he had when he arrived, this son of Scotland peasants with a hankering for more education than poor boys of that day were supposed to have. And although he had hoped for something more than what he got for the envelope job, it was only temporary work with gaps of unemployment between.

Finally young MacDonald found what looked like permanent work as invoice clerk in a warehouse. The job paid him about $3.75 a week, every week, and he left so prosperous that soon he was paying tuition fees at the City of London College and Highbury institute, and even sending some money to his mother.

Given an opportunity to do some chemical laboratory work he threw himself into it with such unrelenting application (a degree in science was his ambition then) that his health broke down. Thus his first ten years in London turned out to be years of poverty and obscurity.

Meanwhile, however, he had become interested in socialism, and when a Liberal politician offered him the post of private secretary he found himself in a position to achieve both a living and a political education. He would have preferred to have worked his way through a university; later, however, he looked upon the learning he had obtained through toil as more valuable than anything the university could have given him.

No doubt the President of the United States and the Prime Minister of England will have many an anecdote of those early struggling days to exchange. For Herbert Hoover got what Ramsey MacDonald's breakdown prevented—a chance to work his way through a university.

To many who feel keenly war's double cost it will seem a happy turn of fate that these two men—both unequally poor—strive to spare the costliest of all burdens on civilization. Their "heart-to-heart talk" may make Mars a papaver.

TWO CHICAGO SLAYINGS SOLVED BY CONFESSIONS

Chicago—(P)—Two recent slayings, one of which had been attributed to "Baby Face" Willie Doody, were solved today, police said, by confessions of two youths captured Saturday.

Robert Camy, 18, a graduate of the New Harmony, Ind., high school, and Earl Nickelson, 20, of Chicago, were identified during yesterday's police show-up by 23 robbery victims.

They were told of having committed many slayings, including the holdup of George Schreiner's pharmacy in which Schreiner was killed, and the robbery and slaying of Leon Raymond at Oak Park August 8.

Schreiner was killed, the confessions said, because the youths "thought he was after a gun." Raymond, previously believed to have been a victim of "Baby Face" Doody, was killed "because he looked dangerous."

FRUIT FLY MAY BE BLESSING TO FARMS OF FLORIDA STATE

Governor Says Pest Is Causing Greater Diversification in Planting

BY J. C. ROYLE

Copyright, 1929, by Cons. Press New York—Florida, as a result of the ravages of the Mediterranean fruit fly in the citrus fruit orchards, has taken a fresh grip on diversification of planting. The fly, according to Governor Carlton, may prove a blessing in disguise.

Florida people, according to a trained business observer who has just made a complete circuit of the state, have nicknamed the pest the "Medfly" and strange as it may seem, it is being laughed off more or less.

Farmers say that while the fly damaged some of this year's crop the next crops will be better than ever. They were assured this week that federal farm board will devise some compensation for the losses the citrus grovers suffered.

The fly is not a statewide pest and no one, investigators say, is openly "down in the mouth" in Florida despite the pest and the recent closing of most banks.

NOT DISCOURAGED

"They are disappointed but not discouraged," one Florida banker, now in this city, said today in commenting on the brave public spirit the state is showing. "Money is tight, there is no denying that. But the situation is not one of panic. Most of the failures have resulted from unexpected runs and have been in small towns where rumor moves always on three motors."

Men who have made a careful study of Florida conditions say the same, substantial citizens are a unit in declaring Florida is all-right for anyone willing to farm wisely, but that it is not so good for the man who hopes for a return of the wild real estate boom of some years ago or who is dependent solely on production and sale of citrus fruit. For diversified farming and truck gardening there is a wonderful future, they say, if the grower is willing to work.

TOURIST PARK BEAUTIFUL BUT LACKS CONVENIENCES

Kaukauna—Milwaukee tourists camping in the Kaukauna tourist park admit it is one of the most beautiful spots in which they have yet pitched their tents and are the most devoid of conveniences. The park has no cabin, bubbler, or like facilities for campers.

The Milwaukee people said they passed through Appleton looking for a tourist park, but could find no sign pointing to it. Guideposts to the Kaukauna park, however, were easily observable.

They had camped in the city tourist parks of Dubuque, Iowa; Shawano, Stevens Point, Sparta and Iron Mountain, Michigan. Shawano park was said to be the spookiest, Kaukauna the prettiest and Stevens Point the best all-around park of all. The latter combined natural advantages with log cabin facilities.

KOHLER IS GUEST AT PICNIC IN HOME TOWN

Kohler—(P)—The guest of his "own people," Governor Walter J. Kohler Saturday attended the eleventh annual field day, held by the people of the village of Kohler.

The chief hardship attached to being governor of Wisconsin is the fact it requires him to be absent so much from his home village, Kohler said in a brief address.

Many of the persons attending the field day are co-workers in the governor's own manufacturing concern, the Kohler company.

Mrs. C. L. Silvis of Rock Island, is the first woman to serve as a member of the official family of the Illinois governor. She was named to the department of welfare.

SENATE COMMITTEE GIVES HULL CHANCE TO DISCUSS TARIFF

Black River Falls Man Wants Higher Duties on Dairy Products

BY RUBY A. BLACK
(Washington Correspondent of Post-Crescent)

Washington—The Senate Finance committee listened more attentively to the pleas of Representative Merl H. Hull of Black River Falls than did the House of Representatives, if it leaks from the senate committee give the true story of what is happening behind its closed doors.

The new Wisconsin congressman was the only member of the Wisconsin congressional delegation who voted against the tariff bill in the house, and was the only one to appear before the senate committee to tell his own story.

Representative Hull asked for higher duties on dairy products, produced so extensively in Wisconsin, and according to Senator James Couzens of Michigan, who continues to defy all secrecy rules of the senate, the committee has agreed to raise the duty on milk.

The house raised the duty on imported tobacco wrappers used in manufacturing cigars, over the protests of Wisconsin tobacco growers and the Wisconsin congressmen.

START CONSTRUCTION OF HUGE DETROIT AIRPORT

Detroit—Detroit's 10 year old dream of a first class municipal airport actually began to materialize this week when construction of one of the largest exposition hangar buildings in the world was started at the city airport. The building is designed to accommodate airport administration offices, airplane shows and 200 planes of average size. Also there is to be space for department of commerce aircraft inspectors, pilot trainers, a passenger station, an airport manager's office, customs, immigration, weather and radio stations. It was designed within the city council's limitation of $1,000,000, with plans for extension of traffic requires.

Matches should be broken in two before they are thrown away, the light being extinguished, of course.

Every automobile should be equipped with ash receivers for both front and rear seats, as many fires are caused by burning tobacco or matches thrown from cars along the road-sides.

Meanwhile, the United States Bureau of Standards is working on the problem of producing a fireproof cigarette, believe it or not! Just the tips are to be fireproofed if the bureau's experiments are successful, it may be said to those who like their cigarettes to burn.

Cigarette manufacturers are also working on the problem of making the forests safe from cigarette smokers. They are developing a plan for including cautionary notices in cigarette packages, and possibly on the cigarette themselves for the education of reckless smokers.

No prize contest for the best warning to be printed on cigarette wrappers has yet been announced, however.

The Beloit post office is going to get a new heating boiler. Bids for installing the new boiler were opened in the treasury department here Wednesday.

David Wigod of Milwaukee has accepted appointment as a first lieutenant in the Medical Corps Reserve, the War department announces.

The Citizens Bank of Clinton, Wis. has voluntarily withdrawn from the Federal Reserve System, the Federal Reserve Board announces.

Jules G. Pierce, postmaster at Brussels, Dodge, Wis., will keep his job, although the status of his postoffice was changed July 1. He has been appointed postmaster of the Brussels post office under the fourth class rating, to which it was relegated, taking it out of the presidential class and reducing the postmaster's salary on account of a decrease in the postal receipts.

Tremendous loss from forest fires in Wisconsin, Minnesota, California, the Pacific Northwest, and the Indian Empire region has caused the Associate Forester E. A. Sherman of the Forest Service, United States Department of Agriculture, to issue a warning to smokers against throwing away lighted matches, cigarettes, and pipe ashes.

SMOKERS BIG CAUSE
More than 30,000 fires are estimated to have been caused by smokers in 1927, causing property damage amounting to $45,000,000 a year, and forest fires amounting to more than $8,000,000 in 1927, Sherman says.

Here are Associate Forester Sherman's rules for preventing forest fires caused by careless smokers: Cigaret and pipe ashes should be

"Swimmer's Itch" Makes Its Appearance In State

Madison—(P)—"Swimmer's itch" is reported from many Wisconsin lake resorts this summer and the state board of health here is unable to announce immediately a system of prevention or control.

With many skin infections reported from lake regions of the state, the health board has segregated a great number of them into the mysterious "swimmer's itch." It has the appearance of a mosquito bite with pronounced redness around each eruption, the health officers said.

"This infection is probably due to contact with the larvae of a species of a snail present in the water," the health board announcement said. "A similar outbreak in Minnesota last year was investigated from a scientific standpoint after practically the entire population of two young people's camps had been affected. The explanation given was that a nonhuman parasite will penetrate the skin of man if an opportunity is offered. No evidence was found that it enters the blood stream or will develop to maturity in the blood of man, but it was believed that it possibly develops in some of the mammals associated with aquatic environment."

The infection recently was reported as especially prevalent near Shawano and Fontana, in Wisconsin. Prof. A. E. Cole, biologist working with the state board of health this summer in stream pollution activities, has been making preliminary studies into its nature and possible control.

The solution was said to be hindered by the fact that should copper sulphate or some other chemical be used to treat the lake waters, the amount required to kill the offending parasite might kill fish in the lakes.

"The problem is seen as one demanding more funds and personnel than are now available to carry on such work with promise of success," the health department statement said.

Another prevalent infection affecting bathers is ringworm, which attacks the feet. It is transmitted

He went to Italy first because the clans gather there each year in honor of their patron saint.

For the Love of a Lady

by Jeffery Farnol

CHAPTER 10
A WISE DUCHESS
FOR A moment none moved or spoke; then Captain Despard laughed softly.
"And now, my lady, if you are ready," the captain suggested. Helen stood awhile as if lost in thought, then, turning suddenly, gave Sir Richard her hand; said she:
"The Duchess, sir, bade me say she expects you at the Moat House, and will be happy to welcome you whenever you will, and indeed—so shall I!" Then she made him a stately curtsy, stooped to kiss little Suzi, and was gone, with Captain Despard attendant.
"Master," said old Truffen, "you as stands up for the 'po' r' folk--when us meets again, mebbe 'the 'po' r' folk' stands up for you--ay, ay, for death shall be all about ye, ah, and I see troubles creeping on ye, wi' 'angers a-many, but love shall come also, and by it shall ye live, for love is strongest of all."
"Love?" he repeated.
"Verily, young master, grieve not and mind ye--the Hand of Glory!"
"Day ago," said my lady, frowning up through the branches of the cherry-tree, "I gave the man your message. And the man comes not. Well, confound the man!"
"Fie, Helen!" murmured Angela. "Remember how wickedly we have misjudged the unfortunate gentleman, how cruelly we have wounded his sensibilities."
"Say, rather, his detestable pride!" cried my lady.
"And surely," quoth the Duchess, "pride is always so very detestable--in other folk!"
"And alas," sighed Angela, shaking her pretty head, "oh me, the poor gentleman so soon to die!"
"Die, child--to die? Is it Sir Richard Guyford you mean?"
"Indeed, Helen! They say he is certainly doomed."
"But--two gentlemen may surely fight without killing each other."
"Ay, ay!" nodded the Duchess. "True enough, my dear, some gentlemen may but these won't; shure here will be murderous business, and nothing but dith itself shall prevent 'em killing each other."
"Nay," sighed Angela. "If either kill t' other, 'tis poor Sir Richard must die."
"Heavens above!" exclaimed my lady. "And why must you be so sure little fool?"
"Nay--why, Helen, oh, my dear, why so angry with poor me?" cried Angela, amazed at Helen's sudden gust of passion.
"Because, miss, if anyone be killed 'twill be all your doing!"
"Mine? Oh, Helen! Oh, my dearest!" wailed Angela. "How--how am I to blame?"
"For writing your three times accursed letters, for mixing up your villains," cried Helen, between snapping white teeth.
The Duchess, finger and thumb suddenly arrested in her snuffbox, watched Helen's obstructed face with a singular interest; thus was silence awhile save for Angela's weeping.
"Ah, kind heaven aid me!" she moaned at last.
"And him!" exclaimed Helen. "And him?" demanded the Duchess, sharply.
"Whoever lies in most danger," answered Helen.
"Ha!" exclaimed the Duchess. "Angela, my dear child, don't snivel; 'twill make your pretty little nose like a strawberry."
"Oh, I know--I know!" wailed Angela. "and Mr. Trumington expected! But how may I help my tears and Helen so cruel? And how was I to know Sir Richard was not Mr. Julian--I mean that Sir Julian was--Oh, my poor heart is breaking, I vow!"
My lady Helen uttered a sniff; whereupon Angela bridled and turning upon Helen like a defiant dove, enquired the following:
Angela: Oh, how should I know you was so vastly interested in the man?
Helen: (Languidly) what man, pray?
Angela: In love with him!
Helen: (Disdainfully) In love--? Who with, miss?
Angela: (Desperately) Why--Sir Richard Guyford! Oh, you may flash your eyes at me--but you're blushing, you know you are! Hant you been riding every day in your newest French habit a purpose to meet him? Hant you been breakfasting with him--alone in arbutus? And gysies telling your fortunes? Captain Despard told me, so don't deny it, ma'm, don't dare deny it!
Helen: (Sternly) Hold your tongue, miss, and weep! Weep till your eyes are like gooseberries and your nose like a carrot. Be perfectly assured that I despise you for an odious tattler!
Duchess: (Closing snuffbox with snap) Genui! And that proves it!
Helen: (Looking down at her shapely nose, beneath a disdainful-drooping lashes) Proves what, I'll beg leave to know?
Duchess: Yourself knows 'tis phwat you've known and I've guessed this week past--tis in love y' are!
Helen: (Superbly contemptuous) Madam, 'tis odious suggestion!
Duchess: 'Tis love him ye do an' himself no better than a poverty-struck squire!
Helen: (Recalling gracefully) Now, madam, you shock me! Suffer me to retire, for I protest to heaven you--that week past--tis in love y' are!
Duchess: Your fine airs and graces are wasted on me that dandied ye on this knee--a squalling brat.
Helen: (In abused voice) Horrors! Oh, most revolting! (She shudders, covers her face and, magnificent in defeat, turns and sweeps from them, across the lawn and so, majestically into the house.)
Then the Duchess laughed till she choked, and chuckled until her whole person, and great elbow chair, shook with suppressed merriment, and Angela checked her weeping to stare.
"Tis small, clever soul yare!" quoth the Duchess, at last--"Come, let me kiss thee."
"But, oh, dear ma'am, my Helen surely hates me!"
"Ay course she does, for the moment, but 'twill pass; Helen's furies never last. But, b' the sweet saints, if she be not in love she'll be thinking o' love, and thinking on 't, she'll be head over ears in love before she knows it! But phwat made ye guess 'twas Sir Richard, my honey?"
"Oh, ma'am, I--didn't! I thought, in my heart, 'twas Captain Des--"

WEAR EVENING DRESS AT DAYTIME OPERA

London--(P)--Throwing a bomb at the King's carriage and attending the opera in anything but evening clothes are two things that simply are not done in well-bred London.
The first section of "Goetterdaemmerung" recently opened at Covent Garden at 4:30 p. m. and ended at 6:30 p. m. with the result that shop girls and clerks hurrying homeward from work saw women in low-necked gowns and men in full dress crossing the Strand for hasty dinners. There being no fog in London that day, it was still bright when the diners returned to the opera at 8 o'clock.

URGES BIGGER FUND TO HELP DISABLED VET

National Judge Advocate Points to Money Appropriated for Prohibition

Kenosha — (P) — Scott W. Lucas, national judge advocate of the American Legion, believes that if congress can appropriate $54,000,000 for the enforcement of what President Hoover termed a "noble experiment," it can at least provide $11,000,000 for the care of thousands of soldiers disabled in the World War.

"These men," said Mr. Lucas, addressing a public meeting Sunday preceding the opening of the annual convention of the Wisconsin legion, "went out in 1917-18 on another noble experiment. And there are 3,000 neuro-psychiatric conditions caused by the war—lying in state asylums and even jail awaiting their turn to enter government hospitals.

"In the face of these facts, the last congress refused to appropriate $11,000,000 to provide 3,700 hospital beds for these men. But the same congress voted a sum almost five times as great for enforcement.

"To these mentally afflicted service men, war was a sad experiment, its horror and suffering still with them. The legion believes that nothing should stand in the way of the country in giving them every possible care that and under no conditions should they be left in jail.

NO "PEACE AT ANY PRICE"

Touching national defense, Lucas said that no one knows better than the legionaire the price of war. For that reason, he said, the legion is the first champion of peace, but not "peace at any price" of the pacifist.

"The history of European nations since the last war gives us no assurance that we, over here, may safely beat our swords into plowshares. America scraped many wars in 1921. As we made that mistake, Europe was building. Today there are more men under arms in Europe than there were in 1914. That is why we want sufficient defenses. I cannot believe that human nature has changed in the last ten years."

The legion, he said, wants a navy comparable with Great Britain's. It wants a universal draft bill studied with a view to its enactment, and it believes in the conscription of materials in war-time, holding that property must never be rated higher than human life.

Of President Hoover's proposal to raise cruiser building, Lucas said he had heard the protest of Paul V. McNutt, national commander of the legion, that disarmament on a large scale should be instituted by all European nations before America suspends shipbuilding progress.

The state organizations of "the 40 and 8" meeting here today preliminary to the start of the legion convention, elected the following officers for the coming year:

GUARD GIRL DANGER WHO ACCUSES THEATRE OWNER

Los Angeles — (P) — Armed guards today were assigned to protect Eunice Pringle, 17-year-old dancer, following threats of violence growing out of the arrest of Alexander Pantages, multi-millionaire theater operator on charges of attacking the girl in his office last Friday.

Guards also were ordered to watch three material witnesses in the case after Dr. Lewis A. Pringle, the girl's father, reported to Burton Fitts, district attorney, that three separate threats were made Saturday night that his daughter "would be taken for a ride" if he did not take her out of town. He said anonymous voices over the telephone told him she had "talked too much."

The three witnesses, who have offices in the Pantages theater building where Miss Pringle charges she was attacked, told the police of the disordered condition of Pantages' and the girl's clothing as they saw her run out of the theater magnate's office screaming.

Miss Pringle said she had gone there in an effort to get her act placed on the Pantages' vaudeville circuit. The 4-year-old theater magnate denied her charges. His preliminary hearing is set for Wednesday.

London — (P) — Cosmo Hamilton, author and dramatist, told luncheon of the English Speaking Union that Hollywood, instead of starting talkies off on the plane reached by silent films, has "gone back to Sally the chewing gum queen, and her 6-year-old brother." Nevertheless he saw a great future for the sound films.

Sydney — (P) — Australian wine shippers sold 33,000 gallons more of their product in Great Britain in the quarter ending March 31 than in the same period of 1928. They assert that the English use of Spanish and

French Press Bitter On British Debt Position

Paris — (P) — The French press grew increasingly bitter today toward the stand taken by the British delegation at the Hague conference on reparations in an effort to gain a larger share of the German payments than the Young plan affords them.

Transcending even the far-reaching political phases of the international quarrel, however, was animosity kindled by two adjectives used Saturday by Philip Snowden, British chancellor of the exchequer, in connection with a speech by Henri Cheron, French finance minister.

As understood here Mr. Cheron had completed a summation of the British position on debts and reparations.

The proposed retirement of all funded debt was not novel. Both the Steel Corporation and Anaconda Copper have taken similar action during the past year, taking advantage of the current popularity of the common stock. There was nothing particularly new about the call for redemption of the preferred shares. That is in line with the elimination of bonded indebtedness. It was, however, out of the routine to give to all classes of stockholders, not simply the common shareholders but to those owning the preferred soon to be retired the right to subscribe to the additional common which will provide funds for the readjustment. Generally such rights are given only to common stockholders.

In view of the humble position the preferred shareholder occupies in these days of advancing prices for equity stocks the action was all the more welcome and it is to be hoped that other corporations will follow the example set by Middle West Utilities. Falling in some such recognition it will be difficult hereafter to finance with preferred stock as it already is with bonds unless the latter carry convertible provisions of some kind.

Another interesting item in the plan was the proposal to pay dividends on the new common in common stock instead of in cash. This is the method now employed by the North American Company and so far it has worked well. It times of advancing prices in the stock market or even of a comparatively stable price level the paying of dividends gives a more generous return than to pay them in cash assuming that the stock dividends are sold. The situation would be changed in the event of a prolonged decline in the market but capital readjustments are made in the expectation of any such eventuality.

MIDDLE WEST FUND READJUSTMENT PLAN HAS NEW FEATURES

Preferred Stockholders Given Right to Subscribe to More Common

New York—When the plan of capital readjustment was announced by the Middle West Utilities Company recently it was found to embody a number of unusual features.

The proposed retirement of all funded debt was not novel. There was nothing particularly new about the call for redemption of the preferred shares. That is in line with the elimination of bonded indebtedness. WARTIME SHIPPING COST HALF BILLION MORE THAN NEEDED

Sum Could Have Been Saved Through Private Building, Speaker Says

Charlottesville, Va. — (P) — One half billion dollars would have been saved the United States government in wartime shipping had been built by private enterprise, Edward N. Hurley, wartime chairman of the United Shipping board, today told the University of Virginia institute of public affairs.

Pointing out that the personnel of American shipyards was increased from 50,000 before the war to 350,000 in 1918, with 180,000 additional workers employed in steamship equipment plants, Mr. Hurley declared that even the business executives composing the shipping board did not prevent unnecessary waste and extravagance, which, he said, would not have occurred if private enterprise had built the fleet.

"I believe that at least $500,000,000 could have been saved, under private administration, with the same men in executive positions and on the payroll," Mr. Hurley said. "There is no question that the program of the shipping board was powerfully aided and accelerated by the patriotic impulse, but the fact was unescapable that nobody was risking his own money directly and it certainly had a powerful, if subconscious, influence which tended toward waste. Nearly every department of that gigantic enterprise showed the lack of a compelling incentive to keep expenditures down to a minimum."

Mr. Hurley said there is no hard and fast distinction between government and business and an essential antagonism between politics and business. In so-called capitalistic countries, such as Great Britain and the United States, he said, the great wealth and income of the people and the aggregate amount of collective enterprise is probably larger than in a Socialistic state like Russia.

Probably 15,000,000 American citizens own securities in corporations, Mr. Hurley said, and business executives are being forced to heed the public will and respect its wishes "as carefully as editors consider their readers or congressmen consider their constituents."

French wines declined but Portugal held the lead, marketing twice as much wine as Australia.

5,000 ADVERTISING MEN ATTEND WORLD CONGRESS IN BERLIN

1,000 Are Delegates from America — Former Chancellor Welcomes Group

Berlin — (P) — Five thousand advertising men, representing 29 nations, have assembled here for the first formal session of the World Advertising congress today.

Americans outnumbered those of any country, with 1,000 delegates. Other countries with representations were Austria, Belgium, Czechoslovakia, Denmark, Estonia, Finland, Germany, Great Britain, Holland, Italy, Latvia, Lithuania, Norway, Poland, Sweden, Switzerland, Spain, and Yugoslavia.

The first meeting of the congress was held last night with a welcome address by former chancellor Brüning in the huge hall, hedecked "radio hall." In behalf of Lord Riddell of England, it was announced that one object of the congress was "furtherance of peace in the world and a right understanding among nations."

C. C. Younggreen of Milwaukee, president of the International Advertising associations, in his speech said: "The real object of advertising is to increase the general prosperity of the world."

The program included every phase of advertising, from pamphlets and circulars to newspaper, radio and outdoor sign broadcasting. There are three official languages for the congress, French, German and English.

Women were scheduled to play an important role. "Advertising women are an important part of modern business," declared the congress program chairman, Gilbert T. Hodges of New York. "They understand merchandising and are doing a big work for American industry."

WOMEN ALSO ACTIVE

A share in the congress doings commensurate with this share in the world's business has been allotted the feminine contingent of 300 who are delegates in their own right. Many of the wives are accompanying the men delegates will participate in this feminine session.

Frau Gustav Stresemann, wife of the German foreign minister, is chairman of a special reception committee for the women. Other members of the committee include some of the outstanding women in the political, economic and social development of modern Germany, among others, Frau Gertrude Baumer, first secretary of the German Democratic party, Frau Adele Schreiber-Krieger, vice-president of the Women's National League, and Frau Hildegard Margis, editor of a German syndicate of housewives' news bulletins, as speakers.

The annual election of officers of the women's international advertising organization will be held during the congress with Miss Hazel Ludwig of St. Louis, Mrs. Christine Frederick of New York, and Frau Hildegard Margis, editor of a German syndicate of housewives' news bulletins, as speakers.

Miss Ludwig, who is president of the Federation of Women's Advertising Clubs of the World, has been chosen to preside at a women's luncheon on Thursday.

Among the prominent European advertising women taking a leading part in the discussions of the congress are Miss Marian Jean Lyon of London, advertising manager of the British weekly, Punch, and Madame Renee Scudmore of Paris, advertising manager of the famous fashion concern, Worth.

Lloyd Dreifal, Cicero was injured Sunday afternoon when a car in which he was riding with Alfred and Harold Herman, also of Cicero, collided with an Illinois car at the junction of Highway 156 and County Trunk F. Both cars were badly damaged.

Barbers Meet

Initiation of several barbers will take place at the semi-monthly meeting of Appleton Barber's union tonight at 8 o'clock. Labor hard plans also will be made for attending the national convention of barbers at Indianapolis in September. William Smith, secretary of the organization is the official delegate to the convention.

TWO 50,000-GALLON TANKS HIT BY BOLT

Philadelphia — (P) — An unusual display of lightning flashed over Philadelphia last night. The Atlantic Refining company's plant in South Philadelphia was struck. A 50,000 gallon tank of gasoline and a 50,000 gallon tank of fuel oil were destroyed. A bolt struck a house in the northern part of the city and knocked Frank Graham, Sr., and his son Frank Jr., from their chairs. It then passed out a window and struck Michael Lafferty as he walked along the street. None was seriously hurt. Several other buildings were struck without serious damage.

KOHLER WINS HIS FIGHT TO UNITE STATE BUREAUS

Consolidation Bill Now Before Governor for His Signature

Madison — (P) — Walter J. Kohler will have another state government change within a few days when he signs the Don V. Smith bill consolidating four departments under one board.

The Smith bill makes the departments of markets, agriculture, dairy and food as well as treasury agents one unit. The commissioners, instead of sitting as heads of separate departments, will be members of a central governing body for all of these departments.

The plan embodied in the bill was recommended by Gov. Kohler. Previously he changed the highway commission to a full time body, reorganized the real estate board and instituted a more stringent budget system.

OTHER CONSOLIDATIONS PLANNED

At the next session Gov. Kohler hopes to see consolidation plans carried into effect throughout the state service. He wants all activities grouped so that there will be a dozen or so boards and commissions to deal with.

The consolidation drive is not aimed to curtail any existing state service.

Increasing state functions have resulted in a steady growth in the number of people on the state payroll. The crowded condition of the capitol has resulted at this session in a serious effort to erect a state office building here. The one difficulty in this connection is to find a way of financing such a project.

GOODLAND'S PLAN OPPOSED

Senator Walter S. Goodland of Racine has a plan whereby $800,000 would be taken from the state insurance fund to erect a building. But the assembly in a test vote showed that it was opposed to using the fund. With the state general funds, the administration is not welcoming new general levies.

If the Eastman bill is enacted into law turning the issuance of automobile license plates over to county clerks, the state pay roll automatically will be reduced by several hundred. But there is a determined drive on now to stop the passage of this bill. Wisconsin's automobile law with its 175 classifications of auto licenses is claimed in some quarters to be too complicated for county clerks to handle.

FARMERS ADVISED HOW AND WHEN TO BURN BRUSH LAND

Circular Explains When Work Can Be Done With Least Danger

Madison — (P) — Recent northern Wisconsin forest fires called the attention of residents of that part of the state to the University of Wisconsin extension division circular on use of fire in land clearing.

The circular urges farmers and woodmen of the north to burn in the months when fire risk is low. The high months are shown to be May, October and April, in relative importance, with August and September each having over 7 per cent of fire losses.

In clearing brush by fire, the circular points to the fact that brush and small growths in the woods cut easier when the brush and the ground are frozen, before the heavy snows, so that they can be burned during the low fire risk months. The leaves are gone, the brush is easier to see and there is less material to handle, the circular said. Many good woodsmen urge burning the brush in the non-risk months, as it is cut, piled it as cut, and thus requiring only a few piles burning at once.

In road building brush is often cut and left without being piled, and sparks from passing motorists' cigars and cigarettes ignite the fires that spread cross-country, said the bulletin. It suggested some clause in road construction contracts for destruction of the brush.

The circular warned that piles of any waste for burning should be compact, both to prevent spread of the flames and to make the pile burn completely and efficiently, without leaving stick-end embers.

Stumps should be well split so they will burn completely.

The bulletin gave a detailed plan of a simple torch, using kerosene, to be used in lighting the fires evenly, for even burning.

The bulletin recommended that when small brush is to be burned over a large area, it be piled in wind rows, or long strips; that the outside strip in the area be burned first, making a backfire or side-fire spread of later burnings; that the windrows be arranged parallel to the wind and that the high end, if they can be started on a hill, be lighted first to make the fire run down slower.

The bulletin warned against broadcast burning, saying it generally resulted in fires getting out of control.

In the matter of stopping fires, the booklet warned that backfiring is often dangerous, and that a natural firebreak, such as a stream or a road, should be used to back the backfire.

Maps of backfire plans are furnished with the forestry manual, which urges that the state conservation commission booklet on forest, field and marsh law be read before a fire is started.

Apprehended, the person responsible for starting a forest fire may be liable for all the damage it causes and for the cost of putting out the blaze, the booklet warned.

LOWDEN SAYS PACT NO DEFENSE SUBSTITUTE

Camp Grant, Ill. — (P) — Frank O. Lowden, was time governor of Illinois, yesterday told the Illinois National guard that "the Kellogg peace pact is a noble gesture, but it would be a national menace if it were ever accepted as a substitute for preparedness."

Lowden addressed 8,000 national guardsmen encamped here and a crowd of approximately 15,000 civilians.

Insofar as the Kellogg pact is an indication of the aspirations of the nations for peace, I am in sympathy with it," he declared. "But its real friends do not set up the pretext that it will actually make war impossible. If the pact won't stop wars—and those who really understand it, realize it won't—then why

STOCKS SOAR WHEN CONFIDENCE LEADS TO HEAVY BUYING

Oil Shares Show Life as Most Issues Make Gains of One to Five Points

BY STANLEY W. PRENOSIL
Associated Press Financial Editor
New York.—(AP)—Speculative confidence in the stock market, which had been badly shaken by the sharp break which followed the raising of the New York Federal Reserve discount rate last Thursday, apparently had been fully restored today as bullish operations were resumed with considerable violence in a wide assortment of issues. Gains in the active shares ran from 2 to 15 points, with many of the leaders going above the prices recorded just prior to Friday's break.

The credit situation has not yet revealed the effect of a higher discount and a lowering of the buying rate on bankers' acceptances, as call money renewed unchanged at 8 per cent, and there were no changes in the rates on other monetary accommodations. Wall Street analysts with considerable interest the weekly report of the Federal Reserve which will show to what extent the central banks have increased their purchases of bills and government securities to provide additional credit for the harvesting of crops and the normal fall expansion in trade.

Revival of speculative activity and strength in the oil shares was one of the outstanding features of the session. Oil shares participated relatively in the current "bull" market, and most of the active shares have been sluggish in recent months because of the difficulties encountered by government officials and trade executives in attempting to solve the over-production problem. Houston Oil ran up 6 points, American Republics 4 3/4, Mexican Seaboard 4 and Atlantic Refining, Barnsdall, A. General Asphalt and Standard Oil of California moved up 3 points. At least a dozen others, including Penn American, B. Skelly and Sinclair, recorded gains of 2 points or more.

Establishment of a new high record by U. S. Steel common at 227 3/8, up 3 3/8, revived rumors of a stock split-up this fall. Crucible which is expected to increase its dividend before the end of the year, ran up 4 points and Bethlehem and some of the other independents advanced 2 to 3 points.

Continental Locomotive (new) was active and strong, crossing 66 to a new high, on the announcement of some valuable contracts. A better undertone also was apparent for the other railroad equipment issues.

Public utilities presented several points of strength although public trading in these issues was rather cautious in character because of the recent warnings of conservative commission houses against overextended long commitments in that group. Western Union scored more than 11 points, American Telephone & General Public Service, Pacific Lighting, Standard Gas & Electric, General Electric and Westinghouse Electric sold 5 to 7 points higher.

Commercial Solvents ran up more than 14 points, Vulcan Detinning 11, Midland Steel Products 9, R. H. Macy 8, and Auburn Auto 7. Consistent strength also was shown by American Can, Columbian Carbon, Pittsburgh Coal and Granite Stores.

Atchafalaya with a quick jump of 5 points to a new high at 232 1/2, featured the railroad group. New York Central moved up 4 points and several other eastern carriers advanced 2 to 3 points.

Trading fell off when the market ran into profit-taking sales in the final hour, which depressed U. S. Steel and other leaders 2 to 3 points below their peaks. Atchison lost more than 5 points, the closing being 101 1/2, down from 107 1/2, approximately 3,700,000 shares.

WHEAT PRICES FALL 6 CENTS AS NEEDED MOISTURE ARRIVES

Argentina and Australian Rains Cause Drop in Chicago Market

BY JOHN P. BOUGHAN
Associated Press Market Editor
Chicago.—(AP)—Wheat prices smashed down nearly 6c a bushel today to the lowest level reached since July 13. Selling on a big scale here resulted from an unlooked for upset of wheat quotations at Liverpool described largely to rains over drought-stricken area of Argentina and Australia. A huge increase of 18,000,000 bushels in the United States wheat visible supply acted also as a decided factor in plunging the market here down, the total being now 156,013,000 bu. against 72,055,000 bu. a year ago.

Reports indicating that persistent drought conditions in the chief wheat producing countries of the southern hemisphere had been broken to a large extent did much to tumble wheat prices down in lively fashion today here at times. Buenos Aires cables described the rains as very beneficial, especially in central and south Argentina. Melbourne reported beautiful downpours throughout the province of Victoria, improving crop prospects wonderfully, but that only light showers occurred in New South Wales, with the main wheat areas missed.

On the other hand, reports were current here that the Canadian growers pool had estimated the condition of the Canadian wheat crop as being equal to only 52 per cent of normal. This in decided contrast with the Canadian government report issued Saturday which figured the crop condition at 66 per cent.

Corn prices at the inside were off around 3c from Saturday's finish. Stop loss orders were caught on the way down. The corn visible supply decreased 466,000 bushels for the week, and is 8,285,000 bushels against 13,492,000 bushels a year ago. Chicago stocks of corn decreased 97,000 bushels for the week. Corn crop elements continued decidedly mixed. Oats weakened with other grains. Provision averaged somewhat firmer, owing to returns on the value of hogs.

CHICAGO STOCKS MAKE GOOD GAINS

Soaring Market Checked at Noon but Rises Are Mostly Held

Chicago.—(AP)—A soaring market on the Chicago Stock exchange today ran into profit taking before the middle of the session, but maintained gains which showed how vigorously confidence had been reestablished after the sudden shock to the market caused by the credit scare last week. Middle West Utilities, which had led the opening with a price of 36 1/2, led the accompaniment of a buzz of excited comment in hundreds of brokerage offices only 70 minutes in the afternoon, but was still substantially above its previous close of 41 1/2.

Other utility shares were happily higher. Central and Southwest in which there is a narrow supply because of the heavy holdings of the parent company, shot up 14 points early in the day but lost almost all of its gains later. Commonwealth Edison was heavy. North American Light and Power held its advance stubbornly. The Chicago Corporation came in for heavy trading, rising 3 points and keeping most of its gain. Borg-Warner, Automotive Parts Manufacturers, went ahead steadily. Bendix shot up 4 points at one time, but lost part of its gain. Radio issues were fairly active with an advance in Westark leading the group.

INVESTMENT BONDS ARE UNABLE TO HOLD GAINS

Total sales, 11,005,000. Previous day, 4,837,000. Week ago, 11,533,000. Year ago, 12,500,000. Same year to date, 726,305,000. Same year ago, 1,958,907,000. Same two years ago, 1,600,250,000.

New York.—(AP)—The opening of the new week found investment bonds able to hold only part of the recovery they made last Saturday. Inquiry was exceptionally light, even for a midsummer market and some price concessions small transactions were sharp.

Convertible moved up with the advance of stocks, but buying in all but two or three issues was on a conservative scale. Atchison 4 1/2s were well taken in the early trading for gains of about 2 points, while American Telephone 4 1/2s climbed nearly 3. Reading Coal & Iron 6s, Allegheny Corporation 5s and General Public Service Corporation 5 1/2s improved fractionally.

Time money held firm at 9 per cent for all maturities and the market for funds was described as dull. A few railroad bonds of the higher grades lost a point or more as small selling orders were executed. Industrials and utilities lagged. Liberty bonds were barely steady and the listed treasuries sold off. Foreign obligations ruled sluggish. New municipal offerings included $2,270,000 in City of Cleveland Serial 4 1/2 per cent and 4 3/4 per cent serial bonds, priced to yield from 5.25 to 4.40 per cent. Central West Public Service Company offered $1,000,000 in three-year 7 per cent notes at 99 3/4.

NEW MERGER OF AIR FIRMS IS COMPLETED

New York.—(AP)—The organization plan of Curtiss Wright corporation, a consolidation of 12 airplane companies, including the Curtiss Aeroplane & Motor Company and Wright Aeroplane Corporation, was declared operative Aug. 15, it was announced today. This makes approval of the plan just a month after it was submitted to stockholders. This is believed to be a record for speed in completing a merger of this size. One of the first steps of Curtiss Wright will be the formation of an aviation research corporation, it was learned.

Stocks of the company are being traded on the New York Curb exchange on a temporary basis and application will be made this month to list them on the New York Stock Exchange. Wright Aeroplane and Curtiss Aeroplane stocks already are traded on the stock exchange.

Advance Is More Irregular But Many Stocks Make Up Friday Losses

New York.—(AP)—Curb exchange stocks today continued to press forward the advance gained in Saturday's brisk rally from the sharp break of Friday. Today's advance, however, was more irregular as considerable selling was encountered on the upswing, but many of the leaders won back their Friday losses.

Call money renewed at 8 per cent and funds were reported fairly plentiful. What little trade news there was continued to be of a favorable character. Deposits of stock under the plan for formation of Curtiss Wright Corporation were declared ample, with the plan becoming effective Aug. 15.

Electric Bond & Share was the leader of the utilities, almost entirely erasing its Friday's loss. Electric Investors crossed 27 1/2 on a 11-point rise and then eased off a few points. The Insull stocks all were strong—Middle West, which stood down to 37 1/2 last week, touched 45 before encountering selling. Commonwealth Edison jumped 15, and Insull Utility Investment gained 5 and then slipped back. American Superpower regained nearly 3 points.

A firmer tone was displayed by the investment trusts but their gains were mostly small. Tricentennial Corporation again scaled a new peak in expectation of its first earnings statement. Goldman Sachs moved slightly higher. Pennrod was strong.

In the air group Aero Supply "B" reached a new top above 21. This group was checked on interest. The Curtiss Wright issues all were strong. Application is to be made to list the shares on the New York Stock exchange this month. Aviation Corporation moved above 18.

The oil stocks showed a firmer tone than for some time. Gulf moved up more than 2 and Humble a point. Indiana shares held around 53.

Newmont mining gained 2.

PATRONAGE SYSTEM READY FOR NAMING OF CENSUS TAKERS

2,000 Temporary Federal Jobs Will Be Filled During Enumeration

BY RUBY A. BLACK
Washington Bureau of Post-Crescent
Washington—The Wisconsin patronage situation has been cleared up in time for four Wisconsin congressmen to participate in the distribution of the more than 2,000 temporary jobs created by the fifteenth decennial census.

Representative Merlin Hull of Black River Falls will name the district census supervisor in charge of the seventh Wisconsin district, consisting of La Crosse, Vernon, Sauk, Monroe, Jackson, Juneau and Adams counties.

Representative James A. Frear will name the district census supervisor for the census district located in his congressional district, and Representative John Schaefer and William Stafford will name the supervisors for the districts of Milwaukee.

These four congressmen will also have something to say about the appointment of hundreds of enumerators in their districts, a clerical staff at the headquarters city, and an assistant district supervisor in each district.

The other congressmen will have no say in the appointments, George Vits of Manitowoc, Republican national committeeman, handling the other census districts.

NO APPOINTMENTS
No appointments have yet been made for district census officials, but Representative Schaefer of Madison has been definitely selected for census supervisor of the thirteenth district, consisting of Rock and Dane counties, with headquarters at Madison, according to Edward F. Kuch, head of the field work for the fifteenth census.

Shortly before leaving for his home in Black River Falls at the end of the first part of the special session, Representative Hull said that he had been told by William M. Steuart, director of the Census bureau, that his recommendation for appointment of a district supervisor for the La Crosse district would not control the appointment, but would be considered simply on the same basis as any other information given the bureau by any person on the qualification of a candidate for the post.

It was said at Director Steuart's office today, however, that National Committeeman Vits had conferred with Director Steuart and had arranged for Representatives Hull, Frear, Schaefer, and Stafford to make the appointments in their respective districts.

District supervisors will make from $1,500 to $2,000 during the period of employment, which will be full time for two months and part time for another four months or so. Director Steuart is now sending letters of appointment, outlining the duties of the work and asking if they will want to be considered for the appointment.

RECOMMENDED IN 1920
When the last census was taken in 1920, Director Steuart said, district supervisors were appointed upon the proper recommendations after the bureau had satisfied itself of their qualifications, but without definitely outlining the duties required of district supervisors. Afterwards many of the district supervisors said that they would never have taken the jobs had they known how much work was required. Director Steuart in the interests of efficiency and accuracy in taking this census, is taking precautions that no district supervisor will be appointed who is not thoroughly acquainted with the job he will be expected to do.

The district supervisors have heavier duties in the coming census than in any previous census. Formerly they simply supervised the enumeration and sent the schedules to Washington, where they were compiled. Next year, however, the district supervisor's office will compile lists of the population in each district, the number of farms, and certain other data, and announce it immediately after it is completed. This plan is to be pursued so that any complaints of inaccuracy or unfairness in taking

OGDENSBURG OFFICE NOW IN 4TH CLASS

(Washington Bureau of Post-Crescent)

Washington—No change will be made in the postmanship at Ogdensburg, Waupaca-co., as a result of its relegation to the fourth class on July 1. The post office department today announced that Mrs. Effie Hanna, present postmaster, has been appointed postmaster under the new classification of the Ogdensburg post office. Relegation to the fourth class takes Ogdensburg out of the Presidential class in which the President nominates the postmaster, on recommendation of the patronage-dispenser of the district and the Senate confirms the nomination.

AIR FIRM TO START TRANSCONTINENTAL LINE FROM STATE

Milwaukee Will Act as Operations Base for New Organization

A new transcontinental air line with Milwaukee as the operations base and with Halifax, N. S., as the eastern terminal and Vancouver, B. C., as the western terminal has been announced by Col. L. H. Brittin, vice president and general manager of Northwest Airways, operators of the air mail and passenger line through the Fox river valley.

The date for inauguration is indefinite, but it is planned to have the ships in service before the end of the year.

The new routes will open a new avenue of travel from the Fox river valley cities, and will be operated in conjunction with the Western Canadian Airways, Ltd., and will afford 600 additional miles of air service. Connections will be made at Winnipeg and Windsor, Canada, for both the Pacific and Atlantic seaboard. When in operation, this new line, which will be one of the largest the population count can be investigated and followed up promptly while the census-taking organization is still working in the district. This method of announcing the population is expected to forestall criticisms of inaccuracy of the count such as followed the fourteenth census taken in 1920.

Scheibel recently visited Washington, and consulted with the census officials, and thus they feel that he knows exactly what kind of a job he is taking in accepting appointment as supervisor of the thirteenth Wisconsin census district. Scheibel and Mrs. Scheibel visited their daughter, Mrs. Robert E. McClellan, wife of a Washington newspaper correspondent.

Band To Feature Former Appleton Boy At Concert

Plays With Band

CARLOS W. MULLENIX

A former Appleton boy who has won outstanding success in musical circles in New York city will be featured at the concert of the 120th Field Artillery band at Pierce park Tuesday evening.
He is Carlos W. Mullenix, who was a member of the original Appleton band in 1915. He studied for several years under Prof. Percy Fullinwider of Lawrence college conservatory of music, who will conduct the first half of the program next Tuesday. Mr. Mullenix will play "The Song of India," by Rimsky-Korsakow.
In competitive examination 1920 he won the Walter Damrosch scholarship in oboe, which made possible three years of study at the Institute of Musical Art of New York city.

Since his graduation he has followed the musical profession in New York city and neighboring cities. He is a member of the New Haven Symphony orchestra. Last season he toured the country with Sousa's band. He has just completed a season with Barrere Little Symphony and the Barrere Woodwind Ensemble, with which he is engaged for the 1929-30 season.
During the past season Mr. Mullenix broadcast over radio stations WOR and WEAF. He will be heard on these stations again next winter.

on the continent, will clip almost three days from the present railroad time.

According to plans a daily schedule of one eastbound and one west bound plane will be maintained. Ships starting from Winnipeg will make stops at Fargo, N. D. and the Twin Cities, before arrival in Milwaukee. Passengers will change at Milwaukee into amphibian planes for the trip across Lake Michigan to Detroit and Windsor.

The Northwest Airways will continue its existing operations and it is planned to put Hamilton all-metal monoplanes into service on the route from Green Bay to Milwaukee as soon as the cities on this line give support sufficient to warrant the investment involved. A great deal will depend, also, upon the condition of the airports.

In this connection Col. Brittin also pointed out that the Northwest Airways has permission from the post office department to discontinue the Fox river valley line. He stated, however, that he hopes the support of these cities will preclude the necessity for any such action, and that instead, the new development may be extended to include the valley.
